TWO AMERICANS SHOT BY ZELAYA PROMPT ACTION

Whole of Central America Involved by Nicaraguan Disturbance, and United States May Have to Take Charge of the Situation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—Two American citizens have been shot to death by order of President Zelaya of Nicaragua, and as a result the Navy Department to-day rushed two warships to Central American waters.

The Americans were executed by the Nicaraguan despot, dispatches say, in defiance of the United States diplomatic representative, and a grave crisis has arisen, in which all relations between the two governments may be at once severed.

A reign of terror is reported to exist throughout Nicaragua, caused by the wholesale execution by Zelaya of all who are suspected of sympathy with the revolutionists.

More than 500 persons have already been shot, and women, even, have been subjected to horrible brutalities.

Were Summarily Shot.

The gunboat Vicksburg, of the Pacific Squadron, was to-day ordered to proceed at once to Corinto, Nicaragua, and the Des Moines to Port Limon, owing to the startling dispatches received by the State Department.

The United States consul at Managua reported that Leonard Grace and Leroy Cannon, both Americans, had been captured with revolutionists and shot by order of President Zelaya. The President was asked by the Consul to commute the sentences, but a reply was abruptly made that the sentence was final. A second telegram received from the Consul reported that the two Americans were executed.

During in the continuance of the situation the State Department has informed the Nicaraguan charge d'affaires that the intended reception to Minister Esteva has been indefinitely postponed. This probably means that diplomatic relations with Nicaragua will be severed if the investigation to be made of the shooting shows that the Americans were executed in violation of the rules of war.

The prompt action taken by the Navy Department has caused a very favorable impression in Washington and proves that the government intends to lose no time in probing the affair to the bottom.

Zelaya Hard Pressed.

At the Nicaraguan legation, Minister Madriz, who arrived here last week from Panama, said he had heard nothing of the shooting of the Americans, but was informed by a representative of the AMERICAN the day that the declared Consul of the city had until he had received official notification.

The State Department has been advised that the Estrada government insurgents yesterday devastated the port of San Juan del Mer under bombardment. As a result the city, which is said to contain 1,000 troops of Zelaya's army, is now invested by land and by sea.

POWERS URGED TO END BARBARITIES

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18—Private advices from Nicaragua say that a reign of terror exists throughout the portion of the country controlled by Zelaya.

Government troops are rounding up every person suspected of sympathy with revolutionists and executing them without trial.

More than 500 men suspected of Conservatory sympathies have been summarily shot, and the bloody work continues. Residences are ransacked by Zelaya's soldiers in search of incriminating evidence and when resistence is offered the houses are destroyed.

Women relatives of revolutionary sympathizers have been subjected to too most horrible indignities and outrages.

Nicaraguan refugees arriving at Panama and Costa Rica declare that for the slightest pretext Zelaya orders the execution of the accused.

Despite the protest of General Alfaro, Zelaya's consul, the schooner Chalth, which the Consul escaped has been fitted out and examined by ex-President Bonilla of Honduras for the purpose of carrying arms and men to Estrada, the rebel official who allowed that vessel to sail last night. General Alfaro declares he will appeal to Washington and, if necessary, have troops be sent after the Chalth and order her to return.

MRS. STETSON PUT OUT BY SCIENTISTS

Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson of New York was to-day excommunicated from the Christian Science Church by order of the directors in Boston. The action was announced this afternoon.

These are the reasons given out by the officials of the church:

1—Working against the interests of the members of this church who are not her followers.

2—Persisting in teaching and practices which are contrary to Christian Science.

FALCONIO THE NEXT CARDINAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Mgr. Diomede Falconio, papal delegate to the United States, will be the next American cardinal. His appointment is expected to take place at the consistory to be held as soon as the Pope's health permits, which is our time before Easter. He will also be made a member of the curia, with headquarters in Rome. Yale will be the first time an American will have a seat in the Vatican board of representatives.

This information was corroborated to-day at the consistory to be held as soon as the of New York is reported to be the successor of Mgr. Falconio in Washington, pending his own reported promotion to the cardinalate. There is a likelihood that another appointment will take place later.

By appointing Monsigner Falconio, the Pope will obtain in his circles of advisers a man who has been in America since 1896, who became naturalized as an American citizen in time to participate in the election of President Grant and a man who is credited with being better posted on Catholicism in the United states than any other prelate excepting Cardinal Gibbons.

Monsigner Falconio represents the modern school of Catholicism. It is said that this country, and in view of the substantial help given to the church by Americans in general, the Vatican seems to have concluded that the influence of Catholicism is on the increase.

DIPHTHERIA CLOSES A KENTUCKY CITY

PARIS, Ky., Nov. 18.—The health board to-day issued an order forbidding public gatherings because diphtheria is raging here. Revivals in the churches were stopped as well as performances in the theatres and even the schools were closed. The order was the most sweeping of the kind ever issued in the South, save during the yellow fever epidemic of thirty years ago.

DIVORCEE SUICIDE IN A LOVE AFFAIR

HAVERHILL, Nov. 18.—Disappointed in a love affair, Mrs. Bessie Belle Holmes, a pretty divorcee, committed suicide in her room at No. 9 Walnut street early to-day. Lodgers found her body in a big armchair.

RUNAWAY TAXI INJURES TWO

A man and a woman were badly hurt to-day when a runaway taxicab dashed across School street, ran up on the sidewalk in front of City Hall and knocked them down. The injured are:

Ellen F. Turner, No. 68 Warrington street, fractured rib and contusions about the body; Relief Hospital.

James A. White, No. 17 Davis street, Roxbury; left ankle broken and severe cuts and bruises on body; Relief Hospital.

The taxicab was standing in front of the Parker House when John Haines, the garage agent at the hotel, released the brake. He wanted to move the cab further away from the entrance to the hotel, but it gained speed as it rolled down the hill, thought the power was not on. Haines did not know much about managing it and suddenly it jumped on to the sidewalk.

SEEK NEW TRIAL FOR MORSE MONDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Martin W. Littleton, counsel for Charles W. Morse, announced to-day that a motion for a new trial would be made Monday before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on the ground that the jurors were not capable nor in fit condition to render a fair verdict.

FOIL ROBBER'S PLAN TO LOOT A BANK

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—What is believed to have been an attempt to rob the Broadway branch of the Corn Exchange bank, where more than a million dollars is held in the vaults was made to-day. The private door of the bank was found open and although the bank was surrounded by policemen the robber made his escape.

GRAY FOR "FRISCO" HEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—C. R. Gray was mentioned to-day as the probable successor to A. J. Davidson as president of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Company. Mr. Davidson's resignation has been received at the New York offices of the company, but no action has been taken.

YALE NOW FAVORITE

New Haven Team Off for Boston and Bunches of Money Are Offered on the Blue's Chances to Win—Harvard Well Backed.

Betting on the Harvard and Yale game started with a rush in Boston to-day, with Yale the favorite at odds of 10 to 8, although there was a lot of money placed at even.

There have been thousands of dollars to back Yale in Boston all the week, with few takers except among those who know little of the game and were willing to take a gamble. Little money from the students across the river appeared in Boston, and this made Yale favorite at odds of 10 to 7, and the backers of Yale wondered, as they did a year ago, how they were going to get a chance to place their money. Just as they did a year ago, they got their chance, for there came a rush of Harvard money to Boston this morning, and for a time there were some lively doings.

At a Washington street hotel there were three bets of $1,000 to $800 offered on Yale, and these were quickly taken and more money offered on Harvard at the same odds, but there were no takers. At the same hotel 2 to 1 was offered that Harvard would not score, with no takers, but just before noon a Harvard enthusiast wagered $300 to $1,000 that Harvard would score and stated that he had the best bet of his life.

Rush of Wagers To-night.

There was practically no betting except on the result of the game, for the opinion seemed to be that both teams, having an open offence, had a good chance to score, and with plenty of money on both sides on the result of the game that the score bet was not a vital one.

To-night will come the heavy betting, for a large delegation of Yale students will come from New Haven on the same train with the team, and Harvard men have promised to be on hand and accommodate them with all the money necessary to cover what the backers of the Blue bring to town. Much of this will be placed even money, for it will be betting between Harvard and Yale friends, but it is likely that the pass will be at 10 to 8, Colburn's State street reports a better price of 10 to 7.

Captain Hamilton Fish, Jr., of the Harvard varsity team will probably not play against Yale at the Stadium Saturday afternoon. While the Harvard football authorities have issued no official statement to the effect that the popular leader will be out of

ARREST 3 CHARGED WITH COAL FRAUDS

Charged with conspiracy to defraud in the sale of coal by means of giving false weight, the Boston police to-day arrested three well-known men. They are Albert A. White of Follen street, Cambridge, a coal broker with an office at No. 44 Kilby street, this city; John J. Healey of Lake avenue, Winchester, a public weigher employed at the same place by the Boston & Maine.

Wade is well known in Charlestown politics. He is a member of the Jackson Club and prominent in Ward 3 affairs. He is a lieutenant of former Senator James H. Melson of Charlestown.

Inspectors Pelton, Pellison, Shields, Norton and ex-Patrolman Edward R. Odley of station 15, Charlestown, made the arrests.

Conspiracy is charged in six counts. Two deal in conspiracy to defraud the Boston & Maine Railroad of $11.73 on coal weights; second, to defraud the American Glue Company of Stoneham of 17.8 tons of coal, valued at $67.64; third, to defraud the United Coal Company of 17.8 tons of coal, value at $56.07.

Three other counts are on June 12 last. The first, conspiracy to defraud the Boston & Maine Railroad of 78 tons of coal, seventy-eight tons of coal, or $48.80; second, to defraud the city of Cambridge on seventy-eight tons of coal valued at $287.94; third, to defraud the United Coal Company on seventy-eight tons of coal valued at $287.94.

On June 10 of this year the barge Molitor, chartered by the United Coal Company, arrived at Mystic Wharf, Charlestown. She was supposed to contain 857 tons of coal in each hatch. This coal was said to be weighed by Albert A. White, the coal broker, at 83.15 a ton. It is alleged that he sold it to the city of Cambridge at $3.98 a ton and paid 60 cents a ton freight to Cambridge. This lost him seven cents a ton on the coal according to the police.

It is said that White sold 925 tons to the city of Cambridge. The city, the police say, held slips for that amount, signed by Wade and Healey. The manifests returned to the Boston & Maine Railroad by the weighers, the police say, show that but 857 tons were shipped to Cambridge, or seventy-eight tons less than the city was charged for.

On June 12 the United Coal Company sold a cargo of coal to Broker White from the Molitor. He resold it to C. H. Walker of Stoneham, who, in turn, sold it to the American Glue Company of that town. The yard books which were turned over by White, the police say, showed this coal to weigh 72,100 pounds on one car and 70,000 on another car. On the manifest books of the Boston & Maine Railroad, signed by Wade and Healey, the police say one car is shown to have contained 32,100 pounds and the other car 56,000 pounds.

WIRELESS SEARCH FOR ASTOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The greatest wireless search ever instituted was under way to-day for the Nourmahal, the yacht on which Colonel John Jacob Astor and his son Vincent, seventeen years old, were cruising in West Indian waters when the terrific hurricane of last week swept the Caribbean and Atlantic.

A wireless pot to-day was drawn over the waters in which Colonel Astor may be. At the request of friends of the missing millionaire, the United Wireless Company sent out messages to all steamships reporting news of the Nourmahal, which left Kingston between November 5 and November 10 so far as known.

At the same time that these messages were flashed out the United States government ordered the revenue cutter Algonquin to leave San Juan, Porto Rico, and take up the search for the Nourmahal.

The departure of Mrs. Astor, who secured a divorce from Colonel Astor but a few weeks ago, for Europe yesterday served for a time to reassure Colonel Astor's friends. Mrs. Astor declared that she had no anxiety for her former husband or her son.

Nevertheless the continued lack of news of the Nourmahal has served to increase the fears for the vessel's safety. Every vessel in West Indian waters to-day was taking part in the search, according to advices received by Mr. Astor's friends.

The Hamburg liner Prinz August Wilhelm, which arrived to-day from Kingston, saw nothing of the Nourmahal. She was in wireless communication with the Prinz Joachim and the latter also had heard nothing of the missing vessel. Officers of the August Wilhelm gave it as their opinion that a yacht like the Nourmahal would be in grave danger in such a storm as swept over the West Indies. The Prinz Wilhelm had to remain at anchor for twenty four hours outside of Kingston during the height of the hurricane.

The following ships also reported to-day that they had seen no trace of the Nourmahal: The Atrato, near Kingston, the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, from Curacao for New York; the Panonia, from New York for Cristobal, and the Coama, at San Juan.

MAYBE COL. ASTOR HAS SAILED INTO THIS RAINSTORM

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Captain Krause of the steamship Prinz Augusto Wilhelm, in from Jamaica, reports having encountered the full end of the hurricane that swept Kingston, and declared that it was impossible to take any observations. It is a mistake, he says, that in case one got under the lee shore of Kingston in Kingston, at the time he left, eighty inches of rain had fallen. Heavy winds and seas prevailed together with rain during the entire passage.

HIGGINS ESCAPES THROUGH SURF IN WRECK OF YACHT

FUNCHAL, Madeira, Nov. 18.—The steam yacht Varuna, owned by Eugene Higgins of the New York Yacht Club, which is ashore on the northwest coast of the island, is being rapidly battered to pieces on the rocks by a high sea. There is apparently no hope of saving her. Everybody on board, including the owner, several of his guests and the crew, are safe. They escaped after some peril and found refuge on the north coast.

CARPENTERS' WAR BROUGHT TO END

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—The American Federation of Labor convention adopted a recommendation to-day that will end the fight between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union of America. The Committee on Adjustments called for the cessation of hostilities between the opposing factions, and ordering an amalgamation of both.

SNOW IN BOSTON JUST A MINUTE

Snow fell in Boston to-day for just sixty seconds. The snowstorm—the first this Winter—began at 8:10 a. m. and was all over at 8:11 a. m. The storm came in advance agent of the cold wave which is due to strike Boston to-night, accompanied by a twenty-five-mile northwest wind. Freezing weather is promised for to-morrow, Saturday—fine, for the big game—and Sunday.

HUSBAND DEAD, NOT SLEEPING

Believing that her sick husband was asleep, Mrs. Michael Campbell of No. 30 Jefferson avenue, Chelsea, sat up his bed side for half an hour, until, becoming alarmed, she notified a physician and learned that he was dead. The doctor said he had been dead for two hours.

Campbell, who had been a Chelsea letter carrier for twenty years, worked as usual yesterday. He complained of feeling ill on his return home last night. He went to his room, fell asleep and never woke.

CAMBRIDGE FUND HITS $65,000 MARK

With five days left in which to raise the rest of the $150,000 building fund, the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. workers today brought the total to $65,785. Large individual contributions are helping to swell the fund. The last big gifts are: In memory of James W. Wilson, $1,000; E. H. Leavitt, $1,000; Russell C. Snow, $500, and Mr. and Mrs. Tevey, $500.

CARLISLE IS NEAR DEATH

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—John G. Carlisle, the eminent lawyer and Secretary of the Treasury under President Cleveland, is dying to-day in St. Vincent's Hospital, according to information received by the New York Bar Association from an absolutely reliable source. Mr. Carlisle was stated early to be beyond all hope of recovery and his death a matter of the near future.

The information in regard to Mr. Carlisle was to the effect that he was suffering from "active Bright's disease," complicated with several other maladies. It was stated that the advent of cold weather was likely to prolong the patient's life to some extent, but the end, as in the case of the last illness of Grover Cleveland, has been only deferred.

Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, who was Cleveland's physician, is also the physician in charge of the Carlisle case.

SEARS LIKELY TO WIN TO-DAY

LYNN, Nov. 18.—The polls for the Republican caucuses for the coming city election were opened here late this afternoon. The vote is expected will be above normal. There are four candidates for mayor—Eben W. Sears, Jr., the policeman candidate; John B. Newhall, a lawyer; George N. Nichols, a publisher and former Democrat, and Benjamin Davidson, an architect. The main fight is between Newhall and Sears, with the odds in favor of the policeman.

Sears has made the only real campaign of the candidates. Last night he had twelve meetings in different parts of the city. At his meeting in the Jewish synagogue he said he would kick he grafter out of City Hall if elected.

The Democratic caucuses will be held next Tuesday night, and it is thought that Mayor James E. Rich will be renominated. The city election is the second Tuesday in December.

INCENDIARY DESTROYS BIG LOWELL MILL

LOWELL, Nov. 18—Fire, to subdue which all of the city's fire department was called by a general alarm, and which is believed to have been of incendiary origin, resulted in two firemen being overcome by smoke and did $100,000 damage here early today.

The fire started in the boiler room of the Davis & Sargent Lumber Company's mill in Middlesex street. The mill and lumber yard was swept by the flames. In the mill building were the establishments of the Economy Rug Company, Upton & Gilman, machinists, Marshall & Crosby, cabinet makers, Arthur Knapp, iron work, and Frank Carter, carpet needles. These were all destroyed.

Firemen Charles Bugbee of Hose No. 2, and Gilman S. Acott of the Branch street company, were both overcome by smoke and had narrow escapes from death. Acott was so badly overcome that he had to be taken to his home.

Bugbee was at work inside of the mill when he fell, overcome by smoke. His fellow firemen rushed to his rescue and dragged him from the burning building to the outside, where he soon revived sufficiently to take his place again among the firemen.

The police are today at work on the case believing that the fire is the work of incendiaries. For the last three or four weeks night watchmen have been sent into the office and gone to the desk of the foreman of Davis & Sargent's lumber mill. There they found the two envelopes which employes had failed to call for on Saturday, the mill's regular payday. These had been opened and the money they contained taken.

FORDHAM FOOTBALL PLAYER PARALYZED

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—"Dud" White of the Fordham eleven, may never again play football. His injury in the game against Rensselaer Saturday is far more serious than at first imagined. White's lower limbs are almost completely paralyzed. An eminent specialist will subject the football player to an X-ray examination.

Thunderbolt in a Clear Sky.

Nov. 6, 1909.

Dear Kate—I wish I was dead. Yesterday John got this letter:

"Office of Broom Bros.,
"Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.
"Nov. 4, 1909.

"Mr. John Green:

"Dear Sir—Our client, Mr. Geo. E. Long, owner of No. 1041 Ash street, has the easement (or right of way) as a driveway, twelve feet wide, across the rear end of lots between 404 and Fourth street, clear of all obstructions. You will please take notice accordingly.

"Yours respectfully,
"SAMUEL C. BROOM."

"Or Broom Bros."

John laughs at the letter and says we are all right, as the lawyer who examined title when we bought it is the best in Boston. But John is optimistic, and I am not. I am sure we are ruined, but will write as soon as we learn more.

Yours despairingly,
JANE.

WOMAN WHOSE TONGUE IS BASIS OF STRANGE SUIT

MRS. GEO. H. SHAPLEY.

To seal the lips of Mrs. Sarah U. Shapley, a handsome, gifted and wealthy widow, so that she may not speak to a man, woman or child, relative or stranger, in the city of Fitchburg and the towns of Leominster and Acton, is the object of the filing of a remarkable bill in the Equity Court at East Cambridge.

The complainant who in thus trying to bottle the speech of the rich widow is her brother-in-law, Charles H. Shapley of Leominster. He conducts a clothing store in that town. Formerly he was in the clothing business at the same stand with George H. Shapley, the husband of the woman he is trying to silence. He died last February.

The brother-in-law declares that Mrs. Shapley has been talking detrimentally about him in the places where he waits on her tips aboard. He says that the widow has circulated that he holds the store wrongfully. The question of the pending request will come up for discussion in the court next Monday.

Mrs. Shapley is a resident of Newton-ville. She is a singer and a member of the American Peace Society. She gained much publicity through her ownership of two remarkable small black and tan dogs and her interest in the canine world.

Those nose of her dogs was regarded as the society dog of the Newtons for years. It took a long string of blue ribbons and was one of the few, if not the only dog that ever was permitted in the Waldorf-Astoria of New York. The dog was so small that Mrs. Shapley could at most carry it in her pocket. It was declared that Toots could carry a tune.

In an interview with a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter today, at Leominster, Charles H. Shapley said: "I do not own the store. I was in partnership with my dead brother. He's wife is causing all the trouble over nothing. All I want is that my sister-in-law should hold her tongue and keep quiet. If she doesn't, there will be 'something doing.' I will not say anything about her claim that she owns the store at the time of her husband's death. I have to say I will tell to the court."

AERONAUTICS DAY AT 1915 EXHIBIT

To-morrow will be accountable day in the Boston—1915 exposition. Invitations have been sent to the members of the New York Aeronautical Club, the New England Aeronautical Club, the Aeronautical Club of America and the newly-formed aeronautical societies of Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania. Flying and airplane exhibits. Elton H. Curtiss, the American who won the $10,000 prize offered by the Rheims last Summer, has been invited to be present. It is expected that the largest gathering of aeronauts and aeronautics that has ever come together in New England will be present.

More AMERICANS are head in the homes in Boston than any other paper.

HAMMOND ASKS A TAX INCREASE

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 18.—John Hays Hammond, the mining expert, who is a resident of this city, has voluntarily appeared before the board of assessors and requested that his tax be increased by boosting up his valuation $4,000. Mr. Hammond first came here the assessors fixed his valuation at $400,000 on personal property outside of the value of his home at Fresh Water Cove, which is also taxed in town.

Mr. Hammond has requested that he pay taxes on $500,000 and the assessors have accepted his offer.

SHEPARD ADDRESSES MUNICIPAL LEAGUE

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18.—The traction problem of several of the country's largest cities was discussed today at the closing session of the convention of the National Municipal League. The afternoon program included an address by Harvey N. Shepard of Boston Elevated.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

CZAR DISSOLVES THE FINNISH DIET

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 18.—Czar Nicholas today dissolved the Finnish Diet, setting the date for the next election as February 1. This action is the result of the Russian Duma after a long discussion, to comply with Russia's demand for money for the army.

MRS. STETSON GIVES UP HER $5,000 SALARY

The Stetson controversy, which threatened to disrupt the New York Christian Science Church, has ended, apparently, in a complete victory for the Mother Church, a victory which was won by the intervention of Mrs. Eddy.

Mrs. Stetson, after three days of conference with the directors of the Mother Church in Boston, is back in New York protesting her absolute loyalty to the Mother Church, and her readiness to abide by the action of its board of directors.

According to New York dispatches, Mrs. Stetson declared her intention of resigning as lecturer in the First Church of Christ Scientist, and giving up her post as pastor emeritus, which carries a $5,000 salary and an appropriate house. $1.18

The directors of the Boston church, who for three days talked with Mrs. Stetson behind closed doors, have refused to accept any statement save to say that Mrs. Stetson was not on trial. The expected announcement of her resignation has not yet come and is not now expected.

On Sunday, when Mrs. Stetson was summoned to Boston, the situation was decidedly squally. The directors met hurriedly and practically repudiated the findings of the Boston board of directors in the case of Mrs. Stetson. On Monday a meeting was to be held at which Virgil O. Strickler, the first reader and the principal opponent of Mrs. Stetson, was likely to be censured and removed from office. Mrs. Stetson had issued a statement to which she professed implicit obedience to the orally charged the Boston directors with being unfair and one-sided.

For three days Mrs. Stetson was closeted with the Boston directors. On Monday a personal letter from Mrs. Eddy was sent to Chairman Hatfield of the board of trustees in New York and chief supporter of Mrs. Stetson, in response to the request in that letter Mrs. Stetson's supporters immediately called off the meeting and peace was declared. The conduct of her followers in New York and submitted the justice of the Boston decision was assured. This was followed by the withdrawal of a call by the anti-Stetson party in New York to secure the resignation of all the Stetson trustees.

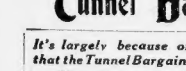
Tunnel Bargain Basement



In Other Store in the World like the Tunnel Bargain Basement, with its AUTOMATIC PRICE REDUCTIONS.

Entrance from Washington and Winter Streets and direct from Tunnel Trains.

It's largely because of the Automatic Price Reduction that the Tunnel Bargain Basement saves you so much money

Why? Because unless the first price is so low that the lot will sell within two weeks, it is automatically reduced. Naturally, we would rather make a small profit on the first sale than to keep our own interests to make the first price so low that there is no reasonable doubt of the lot selling out within two weeks. By any chance should part of a lot remain unsold, note the AUTOMATIC PRICE REDUCTIONS.

Reduction at End of 2nd Week—25%
Reduction at End of 3rd Week—50%

MYSTERY IN STORROW CAMPAIGN AS 'MILLS' TAKES OUT THE PAPERS

Campaign mystery No. 1 came to light early to-day when a man giving his name as William G. Mills and his address as No. 88 Worcester street, took out mayoralty nomination papers which he said were for James J. Storrow. David F. Tilley, lieutenant of the Storrow campaign, promptly announced that he didn't know Mr. Mills and that no papers had been taken out with authority from him or Mr. Storrow.

Mr. Mills himself added to the mystery by declaring that he had taken out no nomination papers. "I don't know Mr. Storrow," he said, "although what I've read of him makes me like him. I haven't taken out papers for signed papers for anybody."

The Boston Directory for 1909 says that there are two William Mills's who live at No. 88 Worcester street. One is William G., the other is William C., according to the directory. William G. says he is the two men or that the two of them are he. Mr. Mills is a barber at No. 50 Dorchester street.

Fitzgerald Files Papers.

The mayoralty contest, which has been spotty footwork for the last two weeks, to-day began to settle down into a real fight. James J. Storrow and former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald appear to be the chief contestants. Everybody admits they're in the race to the end.

Mayor Hibbard, Chairman Fred J. Brandon of the Board of Aldermen, Matthew Cummings, former superintendent of street cleaning, and Nathaniel H. Taylor, newspaper writer, insist that they will "stick to the finish." Some folks say that these four, three of them at least, will drop out at the proper time. The word of the candidates themselves, however, will have to go for the present.

The Fitzgerald forces opened up to-day's activity in the political circles by filing 221 sheets of nomination papers, with 10,000 names, double the amount required by law. The Storrow campaign was in the incipient stage to-day. To-morrow it will formally open up with a bang. Daniel J. Tilley, executive secretary of the Citizens' Municipal League, which is behind the Storrow campaign, has called a meeting of the executive committee for to-morrow.

Democratic Conference.

Rumor this afternoon had it that Mr. Storrow will resign from the presidency of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and that Vice-President Bernard J. Rothwell will succeed him.

President James Donovan of the Democratic City Committee called a meeting of his lieutenants from every ward in the city at the Quincy House at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The Fitzgerald nomination was discussed.

To-night Donovan's lieutenants in Ward 9 will meet to discuss the situation.

The Election Commissioners were busy to-day certifying signatures to the Fitzgerald nomination papers. Chairman Hibbard refused even to guess how long the work would take.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Madame Steinheil Reported Very Ill.

PARIS—Her health broken by the terrible strain to which she was subjected during her trial, Mme. Marguerite Steinheil, cleared of the accusation of murdering her husband and stepmother, Mme. Japy, was reported in a serious condition to-day. She is suffering from acute bronchitis, which developed from a cold caught in an automobile flight from the Palais de Justice after her acquittal. She took the motor trip to escape newspaper men and the waiting crowds. She is at a sanitarium at Vesinet, near Paris, run by Dr. Rafegeau. Mme. Steinheil refuses to see anyone but close friends and relatives.

British-German Naval Crisis.

BERLIN.—Die Flotte, the official organ of the Navy League, prints an article by Admiral Weber declaring that the League's paramount present duty is to combat the idea of a naval understanding with Great Britain. "A nation's peace," writes the Admiral, must be dearly bought, either through the defeat of an enemy or though armaments strong enough to frighten him off. No nation ever gained peace by abandoning its own sources of power. It is neither morally necessary nor emphatically wise to enter into a naval understanding with England."

English Spinners' Work Time.

MANCHESTER.—C. W. Macara, president of the International Cotton Federation, has received a cable dispatch from the Secretary of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association asking about a dispatch received from Liverpool which had been received in America to the effect that the English spinners had decided to go to work on full time. Mr. Macara sent a reply stating that the statement was absolutely untrue. The decision will probably be that the spinners will continue the present running of forty hours a week until the end of February.

Farewell Dinner to Carter.

LONDON.—Ambassador Reid gave a farewell dinner last night to John Ridgely Carter, retiring Secretary of the American Embassy, who has been appointed United States Minister to the Bahaan States, and Mrs. Carter on the eve of their departure for Bucharest. The guests included the French, German, Austrian and Spanish Ambassadors, the Roumanian and Servian Ministers, Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey and Admiral Lord Charles Beresford.

Suicide Lost in Speculation.

BERLIN.—Herr Bothas Paulos Pavlowski, the former general agent of the North German Lloyd in Paris, who committed suicide in Bremen on November 2, had not only lost large sums at a gambling club but had also speculated heavily and unsuccessfully in the stock markets.

Church Ban on French School.

PARIS.—Advancing another step in their campaign against the public schools, the catholic clergy have placed under the ban a school at Grenoble where the teacher had disregarded the warning against the use of the interdicted textbooks.

Two Months for Suffragette.

BRISTOL, England.—Ellen Pitman, an elderly suffragette, is the first martyr to the cause to be sentenced to hard labor. She was charged with throwing a stone through a window of the post office. She was sentenced to two months at hard labor.

15-YEAR BRIDE ON HONEYMOON

Roy E. Pushee, twenty-two, son of a Boston business man, arrived in New York to-day on the steamship Bermudian, with his fifteen-year-old bride, enjoying the novel experience of being the first couple to have their honeymoon reported by wireless from far at sea.

The Boston lad and his girl bride basked so young that somebody aboard the steamship, homeward bound from Bermuda, thought it worth while to send a 200-word wireless message about it to the United Wireless Company. The dispatch read:

"Young Pushee, who is the son of J. E. Pushee of J. C. Pushee & Sons, brush manufacturers at Randolph street and Harrison avenue, and Gladys Peck, daughter of Edward P. Peck of Stamford, Ct., when she was fifteen and attending a girl's school near Boston. He was an Amherst undergraduate. Their courtship lasted six months. Their parents did not object to their marriage, and they were wedded October 27 in New York, both families being present."

19 ARE HURT IN CAR CRASH

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 18.—One passenger was seriously injured and eighteen others were more or less hurt at Cranston, when one of the crosstown cars which runs from Pawtuxet to the Print Works Village left the rails opposite the Narragansett trotting park.

The body of the car went in one direction, turning a complete somersault, while the trucks flew to the opposite side of the street.

The car carried about forty-five passengers, mostly women. As it neared the gateway of the park, running at high speed, the forward trucks of the car left the rails, separating from the body, and throwing the passengers in all directions. The most seriously injured was Mrs. Annie Dodd. She was severely cut and bruised and suffered from nervous shock. Then he shot at him.

JEWEL THEFT IS CLEARED UP

A month's mystery of the robbery of two wealthy Boston men's homes at Wellesley was cleared up to-day, in the belief of the police, by the arrest of an Italian window washer, who had property belonging to Charles C. Ferris, president of the Gilchrest Company, and Franklin H. Gilson, president of the F. H. Gilson bookbinding establishment.

Three diamond rings valued at $600 disappeared mysteriously from Mr. Ferris's home at No. 27 Chestnut street, Wellesley Hills, October 29. Early this month three valuable stick pins, a pair of tan shoes and a pair of lady's gaiters vanished as mysteriously from the Gilson home on Cliff road, Wellesley.

Police Sergeant Armitage discovered that Septimo Puci, living at No. 275 Linden street, Watertown, was employed by Mr. Ferris, Mr. Gilson and others to wash windows. He went to Puci's home and found a trunk which Puci said did not belong to him. In the trunk were letters addressed to Puci and he was unable to account for them. Further search revealed the missing articles.

Puci was arraigned and Judge Emery sentenced him to three months in the house of correction on the Gilson charge and held him in $1,000 bail for the Superior Court on the Ferris charge.

POLICE TRAIL WOUNDED MAN

A trail of blood from a grocery store he had broken into a few hours earlier led to the arrest to-day of Ralph C. Graves and his being held in Somerville for the grand jury in $1,000 bonds. He implicates Charles Wilson, who is also held.

The blood came from deep cuts in both wrists, sustained when he jumped through the front door window in the grocery store of P. E. Fitts at No. 111 Perkins street, East Somerville, late last night, to escape from Patrolman McGrath, who fired two shots at the fugitive.

The policeman found a rear window open in the Fitts store and another open in the rear of the grocery of B. Gorfum at No. 26 Lincoln street. When he started to climb through the Fitts window he saw a man leap through the front door.

BIG BLEACHED FLOUR SEIZURE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Open defiance by millers of the government's warning to cease to manufacture bleached flour, on pain of seizure, has led Secretary of Agriculture Wilson to take drastic action.

An order has been issued to inspectors of the Department of Agriculture to seize all of the bleached flour in the country, and information has been received here that as a result of that action fourteen consignments of bleached flour, comprising several carloads, were taken in the West to-day.

PLUMBERS MAKE PROTEST TO MAYOR

Through a special committee of three, Plumbers' Union No. 12, of this city, to-day sent a letter of protest to Mayor Hibbard against the action of the $4 a day to the plumbers, now engaged in installing water meters in Roxbury business houses and homes. The union wage is $4.40 a day. In the letter protesting against this practice, the committee representing the union asks that the Mayor meet it in a conference and adjust the matter.

HARDING TRIES TO HELP ARMY

Councilman Charles T. Harding of Ward 24, Dorchester, announced to-day that he has taken up the cause of the Salvation Army and will introduce an order in the Council at its next meeting, December 2, to restore the Army's rights.

"It is too late now for the city government to do anything for the Army's relief in time for the Thanksgiving dinner," said Councilman Harding to-day, "but they can be helped in time to make their Christmas dinner a success.

"Just what kind of an order we shall present is to doubt. There are a number of councilmen with me in this, and we are at work finding out just what the city can do in the way of issuing licenses and permits for Army collectors, in view of the fact that we have an order that the city has the necessary power. The order will go through the Board of Aldermen, too, I am sure, and be signed in time to give the Army the necessary freedom they seek in order to raise funds."

INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN GAS AND STOMACH HEADACHE GO.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapensin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, Nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes all symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

SAVE PATIENTS IN FIRE AT HOSPITAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—A score of patients, many of them suffering from broken limbs, were carried out of St. Luke's Hospital when a portion of it burned early to-day. The fire was not discovered until it had gained a good start.

"DR." HILL BEGINS HIS PRISON TERM

"Dr." Frank Hill of Fall River, who was sentenced to spend from seven to ten years in the State prison at Charlestown for his connection with the death of Amelia St. Jean, whose body he dismembered and threw into the woods at Tiverton, R. I., to-day began serving his sentence. Manslaughter was the crime to which he pleaded guilty.

LOST GIRL FOUND BY HER RELATIVES

While Mrs. Mary Magee of Brockton and Mrs. Wilson M. Mulock were returning from Station 10 to-day, where they invoked the aid of the police in finding Miss Katherine Magee, seventeen years old, who had been missing for a week, they encountered the young woman at Huntington avenue and Tremont street, Roxbury Crossing. The girl was returning to the home of Mrs. Mulock at No. 1 Eldora street, Roxbury, where she has been visiting, and from which place she disappeared a week ago Sunday. She said she has been in Providence, looking for work.

SUGAR TRUST FRAUDS WERE FIRST EXPOSED BY GUILD IN BOSTON

These are to-day's revelations in the amazing frauds of the Sugar Trust:

Boston has lost millions of dollars of business by the crimes of the Sugar Trust Exposures of the trust's customs frauds in Boston twenty years ago led the trust to take its importations to New York where it could defraud the government.

The duties paid by the trust in Boston in the past five years have averaged $4,000,000 a year. This shows that the "shrinkage" in weight has been no more than normal.

Boston customs officers and inspectors say that, instead of being the worst port in the country—as ex-Secretary Shaw put it—Boston was the biggest factor in preventing the frauds. Tests made here showed the hottest shrinkage in sugar weights. On these tests the government was able to estimate that $30,000,000 had been stolen in New York and Philadelphia.

Guild Exposed Frauds.

Former Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., then a Boston newspaper reporter, succeeded in having an investigation of underweighing and undervaluation in New York twenty years ago, but the Sugar Trust was formed and that ended the revelations. Blame men were removed from office, but they were afterward reinstated.

It was shown to-day that the Sugar Trust was all powerful over men in the Roosevelt Cabinet, as it was in those of Presidents McKinley and Cleveland.

Further indictments of government weighers in New York were reported to-day.

Although evidence to date has not disclosed any fraud in the customs department here in late years, yet prior to the formation of the Sugar Trust at least one big refinery was benefited through undervaluation and short weighing.

Reporter Found Undervaluation.

At that time a government employe, acting in the capacity of assistant weigher, was transferred to another department. There was no evidence that he was directly responsible for the cheating of the government. The refinery which benefited was not forced to pay back any of the large amount of money which it had saved through the questionable method of weighing.

Men closely in touch with conditions at that time to-day stated that very powerful influences were brought to bear in the case, and that this fact prevented a public scandal.

In the early part of 1889, prior to the formation of the Sugar Trust, T. Aubrey Byrne, then a reporter for a Boston newspaper, and John L. Nichols, at that time interested in a general wharfage business, met at Fiske Wharf. Byrne was in search of news; Nichols was looking up storage facilities there.

"I can't get a bit of sugar here," complained Nichols. "All the sugar that does come here comes over the Metropolitan line steamers from New York. None of it comes direct to this port. It looks to me as if there was undervaluation and underweighing in New York, and that is why no raw sugar is being sent direct to the refineries here."

Byrne, impressed with Nichols's story, began an investigation. From the head of a local sugar refinery he learned that Nichols's guess was right.

"I save more than enough by undervaluation in New York to pay all the expenses of weighing and freighting," declared the head of the local refinery.

Digging deeper, Byrne ascertained that there was underweighing in New York. He secured an appointment as special agent of the treasury department without pay, and at once went to New York to secure additional facts. What he learned there confirmed all that he had previously ascertained.

Trust Halted Publicity.

Former Governor Guild, then a Boston reporter, called for an investigation. The result of this was that in 1880 a commission was appointed, composed of Treasury Agents O. L. Spaulding, W. S. Chance and L. M. Montgomery, to investigate the undervaluations of sugar in New York as practiced by the government chemist in charge of the sugar room at the appraisers' store.

By this time, however, the Sugar Trust had been formed. As a result practically all sources of information became closed. In spite of all these disadvantages, the commission was forced in 1880 to report that there had been wholesale undervaluation of raw sugar in New York.

This commission reported that the readings of the polariscope, by which raw sugar is tested for duty, were habitually inaccurate in New York than those of other ports, more than those of private chemists, and that the men responsible for these tests should be discharged from the Government employ.

Government Lost $5,000,000.

The significant part of the report, however, was the statement that the government had been mulcted out of over $5,000,000. But, although they condemned the methods, the commission failed to find any influence of any "sugar ring." The secret of this fact that it was common knowledge that Colonel James Dorr was the head of a clique known as the "Dorr Sugar Ring."

As a result of the exposures eleven men were dismissed from the government service. Fifteen were reinstated, however, when President Harrison came into office. The other man had died in the interval.

It was this undervaluation in New York, it was showed, that laid the foundation of the Sugar Trust.

Without the undervaluation in New York, Boston would have secured a great part of the millions in business taken by the great metropolis.

BOSTON FURNISHED CONCLUSIVE PROOF OF SUGAR FRAUDS

It was Boston which furnished the conclusive proof needed by the United States officials in their effort to prove that the Sugar Trust had been swindling the Government out of millions through false weights and corrupt customs officials in New York.

The inspectors who were put on the job of sending somebody to jail, after years of procrastination and political pull, found it easily enough that all shipments over a period of five years through New York showed a shrinkage of from five to eight per cent. between the weight of the sugar at the time it was put aboard ship in distant ports and when it passed over Uncle Sam's scales. This meant, of course, that the Trust was stealing the revenue due to Uncle Samuel on five and eight per cent. of its enormous tonnage and that totaled millions which the Government never got.

The inspectors first thought to make a comparison with Philadelphia, but they found there an average shrinkage of 1 per cent., too much, as it is now shown. Then they came to Boston. Every facility was afforded them to test the receipts here, and books were given a searching audit back half a decade. Then it was shown that the customs administration here was highly efficient, as the shrinkage averaged less than .0004 per cent. In many cases, as a matter of fact, the invoiced weight or the tonnage given by the shipper was even less than that demanded by the officials at this port. The explanation was given that this seeming discrepancy in the government's favor might have been through a clerical error or perhaps the absorption of sea water in transit. But it was not sufficiently important to cause more than passing note.

Boston officials are extremely indignant in view of this excellent record at the statement given out by the former secretary of the treasury, Leslie M. Shaw, in which he sneered at "Puritan Boston," implying that graft here exceeds New York many times over.

WATTERSON SIGHTS ROOSEVELT BOOM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Before addressing an audience of newspaper men at the National Press Club last night, Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, asserted that Theodore Roosevelt is the best known American in the world to-day and the most popular American in European countries. Colonel Watterson is convinced that a strong effort is being made to belittle President Taft by overzealous friends of Mr. Roosevelt. He says that there is a strong movement to bring about the renomination of Theodore Roosevelt, and believes this will split the Republican party.

FRIDAY ARROW SALE

Every Friday we hold an Arrow Sale, when we mark down for quick selling all odd lots, broken sizes, single pieces, samples, goods soiled or crushed in handling or used in window displays, and goods that for any reason have been slow in selling.

By this method we are able to keep our stocks fresh, clean and correct in every way.

Many, Many Shoppers Come Here Every Friday

to go through our entire store examining every one of the seventy-five or more arrow bargains. Nearly every one of these women every week finds something she cannot afford to pass. Try it once.

The items are not advertised — the arrows usually sell them out. The original prices cannot be given in the non-comparative store—no shopper needs a comparative price on these arrow bargains. That's the reason it pays to see them all.

FOLLOW THE ARROWS

RUSSELL WILL CASE SUDDENLY COMES TO END

The Russell will contest came to an abrupt close at noon to-day, when the attempt of Attorney Leslie Simpson, for Daniel Blake Russell, claimant to half of the estate left by Daniel Russell of Melrose, to prove that his client was in Melrose at the time that James D. Russell was married in Maiden, N. Y., was frustrated to-day by the ruling of Judge Lawton that such testimony could not be heard in rebuttal.

The testimony was offered by Attorney Simpson to refute the charge made by the lawyers for William C. Russell, holder of the Russell fortune, that the claimant is an imposter and that his real identity is James D. Russell.

The question arose during the testimony of Mrs. Anna J. Scanlon of Bridgetown, Mass., and a former resident of Melrose. She testified that she had known Daniel Blake Russell during the years of 1883 and 1885. She was then asked:

"Now Mrs. Scanlon, a Mrs. Dennis has testified in this case that James D. Russell was living in or near Meadow, New York, and that in the year 1884 he was married to Miss Jessie Carlisle. I ask you if the Daniel Russell whom you knew was in Melrose during that year?

Attorney Nelson objected on the ground that it was not rebuttal testimony, and that the question was leading back to the main proposition in the case. Judge Lawton said:

"There are two propositions to this case. One is that the man is Russell. The other is that he is Russell. You may answer the question of the Russell connection, but you may only recite the Russell connection."

At this point Attorney Simpson called Daniel Blake Russell to stand. "Mrs. Scanlon, will you look at this gentleman, and state whether he is James Russell," asked Attorney Simpson.

Attorney Nelson objected and the question was excluded.

Attorney Simpson then declared that the ruling made a great difference in his case. "I had ten or twelve witnesses from Melrose," he said, "but in view of your ruling they cannot testify. Therefore we are unable to go on as a matter of witnesses from New York have not arrived as yet. We have no further evidence to offer at present.

HIGGINSON IS 75 YEARS YOUNG TO-DAY

On his seventy-fifth birthday, when many men would be retired, Major Henry L. Higginson, philanthropist, banker and patron of education and the arts, went to his office in the banking house of Lee, Higginson & Co., to-day, and did his day's arduous work just as if he were a third the age and birthdays didn't count. At three-quarters of a century Major Higginson declined the suggestions of those who would make moment of the event, and, possessed of his secretary, transacted his business as usual.

The venerable banker, who is always young, active and progressive, received the congratulations of scores of his intimates and laughed merrily when somebody suggested that he was "seventy five years young."

Major Higginson is a native of New York. He was born there November 18, 1834. At seventeen he entered Harvard in the class of 1851, and has ever since been one of the foremost benefactors of the university. He is to-day as keenly interested in the sports of the university as any of the young undergraduates. He gave Soldiers Field, the great athletic campus, and Harvard Union, which is open to all members of the university. He has repeatedly urged that the fees for admission to the college sports be made nominal, so that all could enjoy them.

In the beginning of the Civil War he volunteered with the Massachusetts troops, was severely wounded at Aldie, Va., in 1863 and ended his career in the army as a Major and brevet Lieutenant Colonel in the First Massachusetts Volunteers. He is "one of the boys" when the old veterans get together.

He began his business career in the counting house of S. & E. Austin, but was eagerly enough to do all business well and also to study music. This benefits Boston through the Boston Symphony Orchestra, of which he is the principal backer.

LONGWORTH DENOUNCES WIFE'S CRITIC

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth desired to-day statements made in a book by Fraulein Emma Kroebel, just published in Berlin, as cabled to the New York Times, regarding the visit of the Kaiser of Mrs. Longworth, daughter of Ex-President Roosevelt, before her marriage.

"The woman who wrote that stuff was either drunk or crazy, or both," he said. "I think that will convey to the public the impression I am under that she has talented."

He declared that Mrs. Longworth had never set outside the sacred elephant of the Kaiserin, had ever refused to speak to the Emperor of Korea for his hospitality, or had ridden through the streets of the capital arrayed in anything like the costume described by Fraulein Kroebel, with a cigar stuck in her mouth. His statement follows:

"In the first place, I can't remember very well just what sort of a thing that sacred elephant was, but I presume it was an idol, and as such ought to be held in respect by all visitors. We certainly treated it in that light. Neither Mrs. Longworth nor myself can remember the idol. I know she did not ride about the capital city in a Scarlet riding habit, beneath the lower extremities of which peeped tight fitting red riding breeches stuck in glittering boots. Such talk is all rot.

"It is untrue that she brandished a riding whip in her hand. The same can be said of the statements that Mrs. Longworth rode to the sacred elephant and jumped upon its back and asked me to take her picture. I cannot conceive of anybody writing such trash. Even if it were true, what would be the good of it?

OUT OF WORK, ENDS LIFE BY SHOOTING

Despondent because of inability to obtain work, William Caplin, twenty-eight years old, married, a lodger in the house No. 76 Heard street Chelsea, shot himself in the heart with a revolver and died a few hours later at the Frost Hospital.

MANTIR AGAIN REITERATES HE IS INNOCENT

"I am innocent. I did not kill that girl. Why won't I here?"

That was the exclamation of James Mantir, convicted with Peter C. Delorey, of the murder of Annie Mullins, made to-day to an Attache of the East Cambridge jail where both young men are locked up. Mantir faces life imprisonment and Delorey a sentence of twenty years.

So confident was Mantir that he would be freed by the jury yesterday that he consulted his counsel as to where he would spend Thanksgiving day. To-day he asked that the Greek consul, A. S. Benachi, come to see him.

It is believed that the reticent Greek boy may make some revelations concerning the mystery that have not as yet come out. That Mantir has a secret of importance is known by the fact that he never speaks to him.

Mantir Studying English.

Mantir started to-day to utilize his time in study of the English language. He has a Greek and English dictionary and he carefully studies English words by the hour, pronouncing them aloud.

Delorey passed an unhappy night. Many times he burst into tears. He constantly reiterates his innocence. He is backed up in this by the assertions of members of his family.

"We will soon prepare a bill of exceptions and will fight the verdict to the last ditch. We have thirty days in which to prepare and the exceptions, but we will be ready long before the expiration of that period."

It was learned to-day that the lawyers for the defence have saved twenty exceptions which they will urge as reasons for a new trial. Two of these exceptions were to the charge of Judge White. One of these was to the action of the judge in explaining to the jury about the letters of Annie Mullins, which were introduced in the case, the jury being excluded while the letters were being discussed.

Case Still a Mystery.

Another exception to the judge's charge is in relation to his instructions as to Mantir's silence when Delorey was telling the story on the farm of "an awful murder" after they reached the farm, and his silence when Delorey cautioned him with evidence the girl's throat in the police station.

The exceptions will be first argued before Judges White and Fox and it is expected that they will be ready November 29, when the same judges sit again in East Cambridge.

It was pointed out to-day by those who have followed the case closely that Delorey must have had more to do with the murder than he confessed to, according to the view of the jurors, otherwise they could not have found him guilty of manslaughter. Judge White expressly charged that if Delorey did only what he said he did—get sick of the pursuit of the girl after they had walked into Squire's field and jagged behind while Mantir took the girl ahead—then he was guilty only of simple assault.

The verdict thus indicates that the jury does not believe the truth of the tragedy has yet been told. Does Mantir know it? Can Delorey tell it? In many respects, accepting the verdict as a "just one, the murder of Annie Mullins is still a mystery.

"Martyr," Says Father.

Delorey's relatives are firm in their belief that he is innocent of the crime.

"My poor boy is a martyr," said Henry Delorey, father of Peter, after the verdict.

"Don't you think, Mr. Delorey, Peter would have had a better chance if his defence had been that he told a true story when he made his alleged confession the night of his arrest?" he was asked.

"What?" said Mr. Delorey. "My son, after having been forced to tell a lie, stick to it? I guess not! It would not have been possible for him after having done this injustice to that poor Greek to stick to it, and if he had been willing to do so, I would not have permitted it. It was better for him, even though he had been convicted of murder in the first degree, to have told the truth at last. There will be more heard about this case later, and when it comes out, some folks will be surprised. I won't desert the boy, now that he is in trouble."

ALIENATION SUIT PAPERS ARE LOST

BROCKTON, Nov. 18.—Papers filed in connection with the $15,000 suit brought in the Superior Court here by Richard Brophy of North Cambridge against Otis E. Herring of Boston for alleged alienation of his wife's affections have disappeared and Clerk Edward E. Hobart has sounded a general alarm among lawyers.

There is no suspicion of larceny, however, as it is supposed that some lawyer carried off the wrong bundle of papers.

The suit is listed for trial to-day.

ONE KILLED AS TRAIN IS DERAILED

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 18.—The Florida fast mail of the Seaboard Air Line was wrecked early to-day near Denmark. The train was derailed, the engine plunging two score feet from the track. Reports received here said that the fireman was killed and Engineer Petit injured, the conductor, express messenger and baggage master also being hurt.

SCHOOL GIRL'S SUIT JURY DISAGREES

FITCHBURG, Nov. 18.—The jury in the case of Margaret Paulino Jones, who sued the city of Fitchburg for damages in the sum of $5,000 on account of her alleged expulsion from school, reported that they had failed to agree and were discharged.

NEWSBOY IS LOST.

SEEK AUTOIST AS STRANGLER OF MILL GIRL

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The authorities to-day are hunting for the stranger who murdered pretty Caroline C. Gorgan, whose body was found in a ravine near here. It was established to-day that the girl was also poisoned. It is believed she was taken by her death in an auto.

That the girl met her slayer by appointment is the theory of the police. It is asserted that the murder occurred twelve hours before the body was found.

Miss Gorgon was employed in a collar factory. Tuesday she received her week's pay. When she left the factory she said she was going home.

RIGID PROBE IS BEGUN AT BABY HOME

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 18.—Under the direction of Dr. Gardner T. Swarts, secretary of the Rhode Island Board of Health, a sweeping investigation is being conducted to-day into conditions at the Myrtle Baby Home in East Providence, where twenty-three babies have died since June 17.

Condensed milk is given as the cause. One can from the case which had been used at the home contained, according to Dr. Swarts, 100,000 bacteria.

The Myrtle Baby Home, which has been in charge of a committee of women in this city, is a branch of the Lighthouse Mission, Association of Water and Cranston streets. Rev. A. H. Fortellette is the head of the Lighthouse Mission.

"We have usually an average of twenty babies in the home," said Dr. Knapp to-day. "Now there are but sixteen. Since the deaths in October we have admitted none. Children are received without compensation if the parents cannot afford to pay.

"I court this investigation to the fullest extent. Health Officer Williams of East Providence conducted many inspections of the place. I am glad the state authorities are conducting this investigation."

WIDOW SUES RICH DOCTOR FOR $10,000

Mrs. Viola M. Sprague, of No. 82 Crystal Cove avenue, Winthrop, twice a widow, has filed a $10,000 breach of promise suit in the Superior Court again Dr. Samuel D. Webber, a prominent and wealthy dentist of No. 160 Newbury street, Back Bay. The case will come up at short session in December.

Mrs. Sprague was born in Biddeford, Me., about thirty-eight years ago. She was first married to Charles K. Osgood, a salesman, in 1886 at Dover, N. H. He was killed by a train at Bedford, Me.

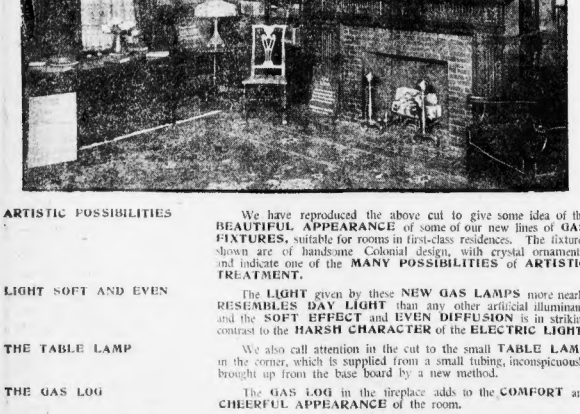
In 1896 she was married to H. Percy Sprague, a mining engineer, a native of States Array, at Springfield. He was also killed in a railroad accident at Bellows Falls, seven years later.

In 1904, Mrs. Sprague answered an advertisement in a newspaper for the position of housekeeper and clerk in the office of Dr. Webber.

Mrs. Sprague declares the doctor took her among his friends and to various theatres and suppers, and she further claims that he proposed to her several times before leaving his employ in 1907.

Mrs. Sprague is a pretty brunette, of slight build and an accomplished musician. This past year she summered at Winthrop.

The Artistic Gas Fixture IN THE Modern Home



ARTISTIC POSSIBILITIES

We have reproduced the above cut to give some idea of the BEAUTIFUL APPEARANCE of some of our new lines of GAS FIXTURES, suitable for rooms in first-class residences. The fixtures shown are of handsome Colonial design, with crystal ornaments, and indicate one of the MANY POSSIBILITIES of ARTISTIC TREATMENT.

LIGHT SOFT AND EVEN

The LIGHT given by these NEW GAS LAMPS more nearly RESEMBLES DAY LIGHT than any other artificial illuminant, and the SOFT EFFECT and EVEN DIFFUSION is in striking contrast to the HARSH CHARACTER of the ELECTRIC LIGHT.

THE TABLE LAMP

We also call attention in the cut to the small TABLE LAMP in the corner, which is supplied from a small tubing, inconspicuously brought up from the base board by a new method.

THE GAS LOG

The GAS LOG in the fireplace adds to the COMFORT and CHEERFUL APPEARANCE of the room.

"1915" APPLIANCES

The room is a part of our exhibit at the "1915" BOSTON EXPOSITION in the Old Art Museum, Copley Square. We also show a MODEL KITCHEN with the latest gas appliances for household use.

INDUSTRIAL APPLIANCES such as gas furnaces, forges confectioners' stoves, etc., are also exhibited.

COMMERCIAL LIGHTING

We invite particular attention to the examples of COMMERCIAL or STORE LIGHTING in the Main Entrance Foyer and the Three Rooms at the Right of the Main Entrance. We believe that anyone who examines carefully the EFFECT of the LIGHTING by GAS of these rooms will appreciate why we are so ENTHUSIASTIC about the QUALITY of the illumination produced by these NEW GAS LAMPS.

ENTHUSIASM EXPLAINED

You are CORDIALLY INVITED to visit our Exhibition or call at the BOSTON GAS APPLIANCE EXCHANGE, 16 West Street. This store will be open Tuesday and Friday evenings in NOVEMBER.

Charcoal the Great Absorbent

Absorbs and Removes Stomach and Intestinal Gases and Makes the Breath Pure.

The able researches of Dr. Stenhouse, published about the middle of the last century, excited considerable interest in charcoal and its wonderful absorbing powers. His experiments were directed to the deodorizing, as well as the absorbing qualities of charcoal, and he succeeded in proving beyond all question or doubt, that the properties of destroying the offensive odors of putrid vegetable and animal matter, depended, not alone, upon its antiseptic power, as had been generally supposed theretofore, but also on its quality of absorbing and oxidizing effluvia or noxious exhalations from the putrefying matters.

Many other noted physicians have since that time investigated this absorbent and oxidizing action, and one of them, Dr. Hunter, has also published an account of his experiments, showing the relative amount of the various gases taken up by the different kinds of charcoals.

Both Stenhouse and Hunter experimented with charcoal made from poplar, boxwood, cocoanut shells, willow wood, and various other woods, and they found that charcoal made from willow wood possessed by far the most power of absorbing, deodorizing, oxidizing and destroying foul gases. It may be added here that animal charcoal, which is employed so extensively as a deodorizing agent, is very inferior to wood charcoal as an absorbent and deodorant.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are composed of charcoal made from the finest willow wood, the very best of all woods that can be used for this purpose. The addition of pure honey to these lozenges renders them so palatable that no one can possibly object to their taste.

When they are taken into the stomach they do not lie inert and inactive, but get busy at once in the good work of absorbing and oxidizing all foul gases, destroying disease germs, preventing the further formation of gases, stopping fermentation, flatulence and decomposition of food, and cleansing the stomach walls of catarrhal mucus.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are introduced into the system by being allowed to dissolve slowly in the mouth, where their cleansing action begins, rendering the breath pure and sweet, destroying any germs existing in the mouth, and removing tartar from the teeth.

Call up your druggist over the phone, and ask him his opinion of the power of charcoal as a stomach cleanser, gas absorbent and breath purifier; then request him to send you a box of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges for 25 cents. Also send us your name and address and we will send you a trial sample free of charge. Address F. A. Stuart Company, 200 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

SPEEDY CASH AID URGED FOR ART MUSEUM

The effort to raise a fund of $1,250,000 to provide enough income for the Museum of Fine Arts has inspired great interest among public spirited citizens. The institution now has an income of $80,000 a year, but needs double that amount.

The opening of the new museum building on Huntington avenue is an important event in the history of Boston and so recognized far and wide.

The museum is a great help to Boston's prosperity, as well as to artistic education of the people. What leading citizens think of the institution is shown by the following letters which have been received by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

To the Editor:

The Boston Museum of Fine Arts was one of the earliest to be established in this country, and with its invaluable collections proves the generosity of Boston's citizens, who have given freely their time, their own priceless objects of art, their money and their best thought.

Beginning in a small way and in a mild time, the museum has grown to be a great institution, which is known over the world as a treasure house of objects of the highest artistic worth.

Quiet and effectively it is working hard for the education and the pleasure of our people through its schools, its lectures, its docents, and in other ways. It is a relief and a solace to hard working men and women after a day's work to go to the museum and see the statues, pictures and other works of art.

I hope that every citizen of Boston will, in his own way, make this great institution of higher education and give what he can to place the museum on a strong footing. Like everything else, money is needed to keep it and its treasures in good order, and this should appeal to all our citizens. Very truly yours, (Signed) HENRY L. HIGGINSON.

To the Editor:

I notice the published appeal of the trustees of the Museum of Fine Arts in behalf of a maintenance fund. The object should enlist substantial support, not only in Boston and Massachusetts, but in New England generally as well. For Boston, of course, the institution has a special educational value, and now that its art treasures are so worthily and splendidly housed any public be regarded by the citizens with pride and satisfaction as contributing evidence both of their culture and their public spirit.

"I trust the response to the appeal will be commensurate with its importance and with the generous benefactions in the past which have made the museum what it is. Very truly yours, RICHARD OLNEY.

About $500,000 was contributed to help meet the cost of the new building and for the expenses of removal from the old Art Museum structure, which did not provide adequate protection against fire for priceless art treasures, and this institution is left without sufficient income to maintain it for public benefit.

STAY GRANTED FOR GOMPERS UNTIL NOV. 20

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia today granted the application of attorneys for Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison, for a stay of the sentence of the men until which sends the labor leaders to jail for contempt of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, in the Bucks Stove and Range case.

The stay was granted until November 25, when the labor leaders' attorneys will apply to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari, which, if granted, will open the entire case for review by the United States Supreme Court.

NAB TRAIN WRECKER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—An attempt to wreck the fast Southern Railway express train, the Southwestern Limited, was discovered in the nick of time when detectives pounced upon Dominick Falange, a track walker, who, it is stated, was caught in the act of fastening a heavy steel shoe to the rails in the tunnel.

HOUNDS TRAIL SLAYER.

LENINGTON, Ky., Nov. 18.—Bloodhounds are being used to trail Henry Stykes, a negro waiter employed in a hotel at Springfield, Ky., who fatally shot Prentice Boblitt, a wealthy business man of the hotel. A mob outbreak is feared if Stykes is captured.

Our Week-End Clearance Sale

Every Friday and Saturday we hold special economy sales of seasonable merchandise at new low prices—small lots and broken lines—all desirable goods, but in most cases kinds that we cannot duplicate or will not re-order, and accordingly marked at quick moving figures.

These sales serve a double purpose—they not only bring forward extraordinary values, but are as well the means of keeping stocks constantly clean and fresh. Thus instead of clearance sales only semi-annually, quarterly or even monthly, we have clearances every week in the year.

Some of these Lots are Too Small to Last Through one Day's Selling so we Advise Early Trading

800 PUPILS RESCUED IN FIRE DRILL

More than 800 girls and boys, pupils in the John A. Andrew grammar school, Dorchester street, South Boston, marched out of the school building quietly in less than one minute after Headmaster Dill had rung the alarm signal for a slight fire in the coal bins in the basement of the school at noon today. The efficiency of the Boston schools was given a trying test and not one of the 800 pupils was hurt or injured.

Shortly before noon, when the first session closes, Janitor Robinson, who was at work in the basement, smelled smoke. After a hasty investigation, he discovered heavy clouds of smoke pouring out of the bin where the furnace coal is kept. He rushed to the headmaster's office and notified Headmaster Dill.

Headmaster Dill ran to the telephone and notified an assistant to ring the fire gong for the children, while he notified the fire department and sounded a still alarm. Within five seconds after the sounding of the fifteen teachers gave the children brief instructions. Then the double files marched quietly out to the street, while the fire engines were clanging and streams were leveled on the blaze in the basement.

The children demonstrated their care in fire drilling by the calm way that they passed out of the various floors of the building. The children on the second and third floors were all in the street within a minute after the fire gong was sounded. Fifteen minutes later the children marched back to their rooms and took up their studies just as though nothing out of the ordinary had happened.

Among the teachers who were in charge of the children at the time the hasty call was made today were: Submaster Edgar W. Rook, Miss Emma M. Cherry, Miss Bertha E. Miller, Miss Alice F. Curatis, Miss Mary I. Fitzgerald, Miss A. Elizabeth Creed and Miss Olga A. Stieglemann.

There were forty-five fires in the cellar. The firemen fought the smouldering flames for an hour in a water pipe which was near at hand aided the firemen greatly. A small hose was attached to the pipe and the fire fought at close range.

PANIC OF 1907 MAKES GOULDS SELL OFF W. U.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The estate of the late Jay Gould is now finally out of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and its going made possible the merger of that concern with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, which was announced Tuesday, after a year of slackening. The sale is a forerunner of other withdrawals from stock ownership by the $70,000,000 trust fund created by the famous Wall Street wizard.

The Gould heirs learned their lesson in the panic of 1907. They saw their income shrink like a thermometer in a Spring day. There was a loss of as much as $150,000 in annual income.

For a long time George Gould, the head of the family, has virtually had the whole burden of keeping up the estate upon his shoulders. It is understood that he wishes to relieve himself of the management of all the Gould properties except the Missouri Pacific railroad system.

Howard Gould would rather go on racing with automobiles than figure shrewdly. Frank Gould is fond of Paris. Princess Anna has no use for money. She wants to look after as well as her troublesome former husband, Count Boni de Castellane. Miss Helen Gould is wrapped up in various philanthropies.

Meeting an alarm had been sent to the West one Hundred and Fifty-second street station and Sergeant William McHugh was dispatched with the reserves. Sergeant McHugh was first to reach the apartments on the top floor. One of the tenants there, Mrs. Caroline Gatsel, said:

"I was just now looking for my daughter, Mrs. Caroline Eckstein, she left me in one of the rear rooms half an hour ago, saying she was going into the front bedroom to take a nap. She is not there, but I found the door leading into the hall open, and suppose she passed the back window."

Another daughter accompanied the servant to the court and described the leap out of her sister.

Mrs. Eckstein was forty-seven years of age, and recently had suffered an illness attended by nervousness. Nothing occurred to give warning to the fatality that she planned suicide.

Husband Is Out West.

Mrs. Eckstein's husband, Alfred Eckstein, is a traveling salesman and a few days ago was in Seattle. Mrs. Eckstein had been attended by Dr. James Ogilvie, No. 100 Hamilton place, who is of the opinion that she was seized by a suicide impulse when she found herself alone.

MUSK OX AT BRONX ZOO.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—A musk ox from Melville Island, in the Arctic, arrived yesterday at the Bronx Park Zoo. It is said to be the only one of its kind in this country, the last in captivity having died in the Hagen Zoo five years ago.

SUICIDE SEEN IN MIRROR OF BARBER SHOP

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Reclining in a chair in James Gowers's barber shop, on the ground floor of the Kalkenna Apartments, No. 258 West One Hundred and Eighty-first street, a customer found lifeless, gazing dreamily into a mirror which reflected clearly the view of a rear window overlooking the stone-flagged court. Just then the interested attendant was darkened from full creation by the figure of a man for an instant. He leaped out of the chair, shouting:

"A woman dropped past that window."

There was a rush of excited people, who thought his customer crazy. The man appeared almost overcome with shock, so Gowers's son was sent to the police court for investigation. He returned a few minutes later, completely disarmed.

"There's a woman lying dead on the flagging," he said.

Tragedy Is Kept Secret.

The janitor was notified. In order to guard from excitement the tenants in the five-story building, the janitor cautioned the elevator man and hall attendants against spreading the news of the tragedy. He had viewed the body, but could not identify it because of the extent of the injuries.

Finding an alarm had been sent to the West one Hundred and Fifty-second street station and Sergeant William McHugh was dispatched with the reserves. Sergeant McHugh was first to reach the apartments on the top floor. One of the tenants there, Mrs. Caroline Gatsel, said:

'DON'T MARRY' GIRL SURPRISES FRIENDS BY WEDDING AGAIN

Miss Ann Helen Rybarchuk, now Mrs. Starrett.

Although she has repeatedly advised young girls not to marry, declaring that wedded life was devoid of happiness, Miss Ann Helen Rybarchuk, a very pretty brunette of Revere, is to-day Mrs. Oscar S. Starrett. The couple were married at the home of the bride's sister at No. 102 Revere street, Revere, and are on their honeymoon to-day at Starrett's old home in Bennington, N. H.

The wedding came as a great surprise to the friends of the girl. They had thought she was a confirmed "man-hater."

Miss Rybarchuk was married several years ago to a man by the name of Smith. The marriage ended in the divorce courts, the court giving the girl the right to resume her maiden name. Frequently since the decree Miss Rybarchuk has written newspaper interviews advising girls not to marry as if they did they would not be happy.

NINE RESCUED AT TENEMENT HOUSE BLAZE

Daring rescues and many narrow escapes were the features at an early morning fire today in the three-story tenement building, No. 102 High street, Charlestown.

Nine men, women and children were in peril of their lives. The majority were aroused to the street by policemen and firemen. One man, William King, an octogenarian, was carried to safety by Patrolman James P. Doyle of the City square station.

Mary Littlefield, wife of Charles Littlefield, who conducts a grocery store on the first floor, discovered the fire.

She made an effort to extinguish the blaze. Realizing that she could not check the flames she aroused her husband. Their cries in turn aroused the other tenants of the building.

When Mr. and Mrs. Littlefield attempted to escape by one of the doorways they found their way blocked by flames. They made their way to a rear room, facing Salem street, and jumped to the ground, a distance of about ten feet. Both were uninjured.

Firemen rendered effective service in the rescue work. They made their way to the third floor and guided Mrs. Mary Blodgett and Mrs. Mary McGovern to the street. They also aided Mrs. Barry and her daughter, Catherine, in reaching safety.

FIREBUG VISITED OLD SOUTH BUILDING

An attempt to burn the Old South building was revealed to the police when a bundle of oil-saturated cotton, still smouldering, was discovered in a closet in room No. 2 229, occupied by a tailoring concern. Only the lack of air had prevented it from bursting into a blaze. The firebug had got in by breaking the glass in the hall door of the room. Similar damage had been done to the door of room No. 826. Nothing was taken from either office.

4-YEAR-OLD GETS BABY SISTER SHORN

TORRINGTON, Ct., Nov. 18.—Robert Schoffer, four years old, entered the barber shop of Louis Kant, lending his two-year-old sister Helen, who had long curls. "Mamma wants Helen's hair cut off" said Bobby, and the barber went to work. The mother feared her children for the step and loudly expressed her grief. The idea that Helen needed a hair cut originated with Robert, and as the barber had half finished his job he was permitted to carry it out to the end.

'LA GIOCONDA' WITH NORDICA BILL TO-NIGHT

To-night Boston music lovers will have a chance to hear their own great Nordica sing in the Boston Opera House. The opera is to be "La Gioconda," which was sung on the opening night of the Opera House. The great cast of singers who produced "La Gioconda" the first night will sing the opera again to-night.

To-night is a popular or extra performance. Unlike subscription nights, when the great Opera House is sold out, there are seats for everyone and at moderate prices. Manager Russell, knowing want an idol Nordica is with the Boston opera lovers, prevailed upon her to sing when every one in Boston who had not the advantage of a subscription seat might have an opportunity to hear her.

To-night's repetition of "La Gioconda" should be far better than the first night's. The cast of characters will be the same with one exception, and that comparatively a minor part, is identical with the great cast which first appeared at the Boston Opera House. In addition to Nordica, Constantino and Rakowski will be heard.

The Opera House orchestra will do its part with more assurance, having been familiarized by means of the previous performance with the score. The ballet will be better and the chorus will be much superior to what it then was by reason of having worked so long now together.

The sale of seats for the extra performance has been exceptionally heavy.

$10,000 GIFT FOR BEVERLY Y. M. C. A.

BEVERLY, Nov. 18.—The first day of the week's campaign to raise $60,000 toward a new Y. M. C. A. building in Beverly ended with the sum of $31,874 pledged, a showing that has increased the enthusiasm of all the workers immensely. Melville Woodbury, the well known shoe manufacturer, who is chairman of the general campaign committee, personally subscribed $10,000 of this amount. The business men of the city are divided into twenty teams.

HARVEY CONCERT SUCCESS.

Miss Matilda Lewicka and Signor Rodolfo Formari of the Boston Opera Company were soloists at the recital last evening in Jordan Hall, given by the C. C. Harvey Company of No. 144 Boylston street. Other artists on the same party were Wilbur Morse Rummel, violinist, and Percival K. Van Voy of New York, who was at the Angelus. All the artists were accompanied by the Angelus, and said that for the purpose it was perfect.

How to Treat Dandruff.

The scalp is the seat of many hair diseases. Out of the pores of the scalp constantly comes an oily secretion, together with cast-off cells and waste matter that Nature has no further use for. The oily secretion keeps the scalp moist and gives lustre and beauty to the hair. Dust, dirt and disease germs floating in the air settle upon the head, and the oily secretion holds them fast. In time scales and dandruff form, the pores become clogged, and the first thing you know your hair begins to fall out. You don't need a "tonic," "grower," "renewer" or "rejuvenator." Most of those things are rank frauds. If you have tried them, you know it. What you need is a cleanser. The trouble with soaps and shampoos generally is that they remove all the moisture from the hair and the scalp and rob them of the very thing Nature provided to keep the head moist and supple, and the hair lustrous. Try Hirt's Head Wash, the new scientific preparation for hair and scalp troubles. It cleans the head thoroughly, and when you are through you have all have a beautiful lustre and sheen, and the scalp will be delightfully clear. Upon each package of Hirt's Head Wash is the following formula, showing just what it is made of: Refined Soap, Glycerine, Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs and Salts of Sulphur. Ask your doctor about it. Price 50 cents.

By ARTHUR DE GUICHARD.

A double bill, composed of "I Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo, and "Cavalleria Rusticana," by Mascagni, was presented last night at the Boston Opera House to an audience that filled every part of the vast theatre.

It seems to have become a kind of fashion among impresarios to give these two operas on the same night, although it is difficult to find a sufficient reason for the custom, unless it be from a desire to "pile on the agony."

They are very beautiful operas, replete with captivating melodies, dramatic situations of the blood-curdling order, picturesque scenic effects and groupings, free orchestral treatment of a highly colored and original imagery that gives a more concentrated intensity of meaning to the stories—all of this is indisputable.

But their plots are very strong, strong in their terseness of the concentrated shortstory order, and strong in their flavor.

In each opera the plot moves rapidly from a fateful opening to a tragic end. Love, infidelity, jealousy, with death for the moral conclusion, the old, old story, yet ever new.

Carnival of Blood.

Before the audience has recovered from its emotion, caused by the beautiful music, the melodramatic story and lugubrious climax of I Pagliacci," thus it is again plunged into a state of poignant anguish by the tragic tale and scarcely less beautiful music of "Cavalleria Rusticana."

The librettist of the latter has kept more to the classical tenets of his craft, the story moves in a more dignified way to its conclusion and there is no blood shed before the audience.

But the two stories presented one directly after the other on the same night are too harrowing to the feelings.

As a double bill it is a veritable carnival of blood, made all the more terrible by the descriptive realism of the instrumentation. People squirm at "Salome," yet they accept not the music alone but the stories of these two operas which are a reek of low-life tragedy of the commonest kind in Europe, in a country where among a certain class the final reason is given in a knife thrust.

Nothing but the heart-pealing eloquence of Mascagni's rigorous, passionate music, with its soul-appealing melodies, could raise the story of "Cavalleria" out of the ruts of an ordinary police court event.

Story of "I Pagliacci."

But the music's the thing, and Mascagni outshone himself when he composed this opera, and the fact remains that he has never since equaled it.

"I Pagliacci," while just as sordid in its misery, immoral in its motives and more sanguinary in its conclusion, is conceived in a more original vein and worked up more artistically to its murderous catastrophe.

It is a story of strolling players, of clown and harlequin, of Columbine and Punchinello—a true story, as Tonio informs us in the prologue—in which the manager of the company, Canio, the Punchinello (or Pagliaccio), consumed with jealousy at the light behavior of his wife, Nedda, the Columbine, with Silvio, a rich peasant admirer, and tired by a coincidence in a play they are performing, stabs his wife before the village audience and then kills Silvio as he is rushing to her help.

The naturalism of these short operas is Zola-like in intensity. Both are masterpieces of musical inspiration, perfect in melodic and orchestral construction hard to equal, impossible to excel.

Bronskaja Taken Ill.

Mme. Eugenia Bronskaja, the Russian soprano, was to have made her debut as Nedda, but owing to sudden illness the part was taken by Miss Virginia Pierce, upon very short notification.

Miss Pierce is a native of Los Angeles, Cal., and a regular member of the company. It would be manifestly unfair to enter into any detailed criticism of her performance. She showed courage of no mean order to sing the part at a moment's notice and that without any rehearsal with the other artists.

She passed through the test with credit to herself and assurance to the cast.

Raymond Bonlogne, the excellent baritone, gave an interesting rendering of the well-known prologue, and received a hearty recall. Owing probably to the change in principals, the beginning of the opera was marred by a few moments of uncertainty of attack, on the part of all the singers, which threatened to become more serious, but Maestro Conti was fully equal to the emergency and cleverly pulled his forces together.

The Canio of Mr. Brun Leliva was the best thing he has yet done. His "Vesti pagliacchi" was excellent both in singing and in acting, and he fairly carried the entire audience with him.

His voice was pure and vibrant and his accents penetrated with real grief. It was a clever performance.

Chorus Again in Good Voice.

With him the honors of this opera were shared by M. Bonlogne as Tonio. His method is sure, and his diction and declamatory style are well adapted to the part.

M. Giuseppe Picco, as Silvio, sang and acted the role with authority. He was particularly effective in the love duo with Nedda, in which Miss Pierce also appeared to better advantage. M. Guglielmo Sabatini, M. C. Stroscio, always capable in small bodies, and M. George Dunstan completed the cast.

The success of the evening was carried off by the performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana." It may be positively affirmed the setting and interpretation from first to last, from highest to lowest, from principals to chorus, was not inferior to the best performances given either in this country or in European theatres. The whole representation was a triumph that aroused the most expressed enthusiasm of the audience. There was not one weak spot in the whole rendition.

Mr. Florencio Constantino, as Turiddu, in full possession of his vocal power, set the tide of sonorous flowing by his clear enunciation and perfect phrasing of the Sicilian.

Mme. Jane Noria (Santuzza) has come back to us with her warm, sympathetic voice, full of dramatic expression and thoroughly matured in the actor's art.

Her scene with Turiddu was powerfully portrayed. Each played up to the other in excellent unison, so that it was a question which to admire more, the impassioned acting or the equally dramatic vocal expression.

Miss Bettina Freeman is making great strides in her art. In the role of Lola she showed a marked artistic advance and proved herself an acquisition to the company whose future progress will be watched with interest.

Settings Well Arranged.

Mr. Rodolfo Fornari, as Alfio, lent very efficient aid. He sang his part pleasantly, with intelligence, and his acting is always appropriate and in the picture.

Miss Mildred Rogers deserves praise for her careful interpretation of Mamma Lucia. She made an imposing figure and sang the lines with careful delivery and pure style.

The scenic settings in both operas were beautifully arranged, special commendation being given to the management of the lighting in the opening of "Cavalleria."

The performance of "Cavalleria" marks the first complete step in an era of success in the annals of the Boston Opera House.

Gems Give Way to Flowers on Debutantes

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

It has long been a tradition in other large cities that Monday night at the opera is always marked by the greatest brilliance in diamonds, gowns and prestige, so quite naturally we looked for the same to hold good in Boston. But get on. Last night's program was such an excellent one that the social interest was satisfactory even to the opera glass battalion that comes to see jewels rather than to hear golden notes.

Nearly every box was filled, the gowns were all new and the enthusiasm as keen as on the opening night.

There were not so many light gowns worn, but they were all specific and not more or less what might be properly styled gorgeous creations. Black velvet figures predominated, even many of the youngest girls wearing gowns of that material and color, relieved only by a blouse of some bright line, worn at the corsage.

In many instances flowers seem to be taking the place of jewels, and especially is this true with the younger girls, who possibly have shown all their jewelry and seen it worn and for a time of the past season.

Many, especially those who entertained at dinner and brought their guests on with them, arrived after the curtain had gone up on the second act.

Among the very latest to arrive were the Bryce Allens and the Larz Andersons.

Mrs. Allen, as she entered and bowed to her box, sweated one blaze of diamonds, the gown was of white satin, the decolletage outlined by a strand of diamonds. Her necklace was of the same jewels, as was also her tiara.

Mrs. Anderson's was in white lace and diamonds, and was enveloped in a beautiful fur wrap of white ermine.

Miss Dorothy Forbes, with a huge bunch of lovely violets in the fluff of her white chiffon gown; Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott in a handsome confection in sheer white net over white satin with design of black chiffon falling from the shoulder, enclosed the corsage bouquet of flaming red gardenias, and the ribbon-haired Miss Curtis, in burnt orange velvet, effectively finished by gold earrings and fillet of gold in her hair, were among the younger women who made a series of social pictures that always vie with the stage pictures of the opera.

Society Girl Heroine.

Tonight people who came only to listen even they strained their ocular muscles and the chords of their necks in a vain attempt to focus their glasses on these beauties.

Miss Mary Fay, who is still carrying her broken arm in a sling, was quite a heroine, but looked ever so bright and well. She wore an ideal gown, a checked silk draped cleverly and almost outrimmed, save by simple fringe.

Miss Rosamond Dixey came with her mother, Mrs. Richard C. Dixey and a party of friends. She is a wonderfully attractive girl, for she has a frank, sweet face, with no "beauty doctor" bloom.

Her gowns are ever clever, too, and always so becoming. The one worn last night being distinctly so. It was of cloth trimmed with the drapery effect and outlined with gold embroidery on the bodice.

With her gown of black velvet, with soft folds of white tulle outlining the cut corsage, Miss Alice Sohier, one of our most important ladies, is ever becoming and though often she has been credited with an antipathy for gems, used as jewelry equal to that of the late Cecil Rhodes.

One large pink rose at the corsage was another becoming feature of her costume. With her was her sister Alice in pale blue satin.

Mrs. Codman "Stunning."

One always looks for Mrs. Alfred Codman at the opera, for of all the handsome young matrons in town she is the handsomest and is always singled out for mention when people see her enter.

Last night, in her clinging decollete gown of pale blue satin with the corsage outlined in tiny pink rose buds and the same flowers forming a filet in her belt, she certainly called for the usual girlish adjective "stunning."

Mrs. Courtice Robinson, one of the most charming of the younger matrons of Brookline, in black lace and diamonds. Mrs. Aldus A. Thorndike, in old rose satin and handsome pearls. Mrs. Stanley McCreery, in black velvet. Mrs. L. Cartaret Penno, in black lace and Mrs. Theodore Bowe, in black lace and Mrs. Theodore Bancel, in white satin, were among the notably attractive matrons present last night.

Mrs. Gardner, with a party including Mr. Peacock, occupied a box and as usual lovers always do, and lacked concavity well up on the second act, with drawn silk at the corsage and in her hair.

Other Handsome Gowns.

Mrs. Gordon Dexter in white lace with one large pink rose at the corsage and diamonds about her neck and in her hair, was among the most stately and attractive.

Mrs. Frederick Ayer, in white lace and white satin, were among the notably attractive matrons present last night.

Mrs. Gardner, with a party including Mr. Peacock, occupied a box and as usual lovers always do, and lacked concavity well up on the second act, with drawn silk at the corsage and in her hair.

Other Handsome Gowns.

Mrs. Gordon Dexter in white lace with one large pink rose at the corsage and diamonds about her neck and in her hair, was among the most stately and attractive.

Mrs. James Fuller Lord (Marion Lawson) in amethyst silk with white lace drapery was one of the late arrivals.

Mrs. Arthur Adrian, wearing notably handsome gowns were Mrs. James Garland in white satin and diamonds, Mrs. Charles S. Bird, in black velvet; Mrs. Richard C. Dixey, in gray chiffon; Miss Mary S. Ames, in white lace; Mrs. Edward D. Brandegee, in dark green satin and black lace; Mrs. Andrew Wheelwright, in black chiffon; Mrs. Frank Peabody, black velvet and pearls; Mrs. Oliver Ames, black velvet and diamonds; Mrs. James J. Storrow, black chiffon; Mrs. Henry D. Hunnewell, dark gray chiffon, trimmed with cordons of gold and Mrs. Gordon Abbott, in black lace.

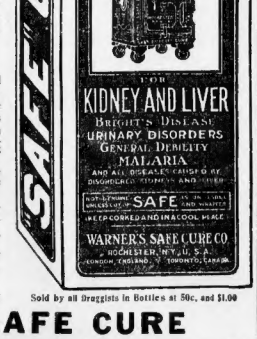
Are Your Kidneys Weak?

THOUSANDS OF MEN AND WOMEN UNWELL THROUGH KIDNEYS FAILING TO PROPERLY FILTER THEIR BLOOD.

Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Nervous Disorders, Dropsy and Bright's Disease are Caused by Kidneys not Acting Aright.

See that you get the genuine package, as illustrated below.



WEAK kidneys are the common heritage of thousands of Americans. They are the cause of the housewife's backache pains when she rises from the scrubbing board, and the cause of the husband's Rheumatic agony when he bends down to his work.

They are also the cause, when those early symptoms are neglected, which leads to permanent Kidney Disablement, Dropsy and Bright's Disease.

Yet few people take the trouble to look after their kidneys. They busy themselves in relieving the Rheumatism and allaying the backache pains, when all the while the kidneys are struggling at their task, getting weaker and weaker and becoming hopelessly incapable of purifying the blood as they should.

Reader, see that you do not make the same mistake. If you are using drugs or liniments for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Blood Disorders, or Nervous Ailments, STOP at once! It is your kidneys that need help.

THE HELP YOU NEED.

Exactly the kind of help they need can be supplied by Warner's "Safe" Cure, which is the only true and reliable specific for deranged kidneys. It does not do the kidneys work (nothing can do that), but it strengthens and puts new vigor into them so that they can perform their duties just as nature intended. By thus building up and strengthening their power, Warner's "Safe" Cure enables the kidneys to properly purify the blood, and thus rid the whole system of the poisons which are the root of disease.

To this marvelous power must be credited the stupendous success which Warner's "Safe" Cure has attained in banishing Rheumatism, Sciatica, Dropsy, Stone, and kindred diseases from hundreds of people's lives.

But remember, backache is the first symptom of kidney weakness—the sign that warns you of encroaching disease.

Make your kidneys healthy and strong by taking the game of the season, persons close to the team frankly acknowledge that the injury received by Captain Fish in the Dartmouth game was far more serious than realized at the time. Since then Fish has not practiced with the team, although he has been at all the practice periods, but has made no attempt to even run through signals.

Fish Hurt About Ribs.

Dr. Nicholas and Trainer Donovan have worked hard on Fish this week, and in reply to questions as to his condition have always said, "We hope to have him in condition to play on Saturday." This reply was given with confidence in the early part of the week, but the manner in which it was said the last two days showed that there was little hope of his being in the game.

Fish's injury is said to be the breaking of the cartilage of the ribs. The injury was received in a collision with Ingersoll of the Dartmouth team when the two players were jumping for a bounding ball. Captain Fish resumed play, but a few plays was compelled to take a second rest. He played through the entire first half, but was below his form, and Dartmouth made several gains through his side of the line which he would have stopped easily had he been at his usual form. It was plain that he had trouble in breathing and was not as fast on his feet.

The coaches were optimistic over the chances of Fish's playing until yesterday, when it was realized that he was not recovering fast enough to warrant any hopes of his playing throughout the entire game, and some doubt of his being strong enough to start the game. It will be only fourfifths for the Yale team to make Captain Fish bear the brunt of its attack in case he starts, and here would be no chance of his lasting for many minutes. If his play were not up to his past standard, the ground gained through his side of the line might give Yale a decided advantage.

In order to fill the captain's position Crawford Blagden, who coached the line early in the season, was recalled, and spent yesterday coaching Bush and Hooper, substitutes at Fish's position. They then took L. Withington from guard and worked him at tackle. In case Fish does not start the game, Bush is probably the first choice.

YALE 11 IS GIVEN GREAT SEND-OFF ON START FOR BOSTON

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—The Eli eleven was given a "booster" of a parting ovation when it left her at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The players spent the morning packing their personal baggage. Their uniforms went last night direct to the Stadium. The players reported at the New Haven House this noon for their final lunch, dress suit case and personal grip in hand. They were driven to the depot at 1:15, every player being cheered by hundreds of undergraduates.

The Boston & Albany Express was ordered to stop at Auburndale at 5:30, to let the players alight near the Woodlawn Park Hotel.

After the game in the stadium on Saturday the players will dress in the Harvard gymnasium building and will take a special trolley trolley car to the Westminster Hotel, where they will break training for the annual banquet. The members of the team will return to New Haven sometime Sunday. Captain Coy said before the eleven departed:

"The improvement in condition of the members of the Yale eleven this week has been remarkable. The team has just jumped back into shape and the weight lost in the Princeton game has all come back and more, too. I think I have better condition to begin the Harvard game than I was when I started Princeton game. Fish, the muscle bruise I received last week has entirely disappeared. We look for a hard game from Harvard, whom we believe to be mostly strong."

HOTELS CROWDED; TABLES SCARCE; TICKETS AWAY UP

Tickets for the Yale-Harvard game on Saturday are worth more than their weight in gold. They are not to be had at any price, either. The very most prices quoted on them are purely fictious. The speculators have no tickets for sale or sell, but they are willing to pay twenty dollars a piece for any seats and this despite the fact that 1,200 more tickets have been issued. These are for Harvard graduates who were not supplied by the first allotment. The seats were put around the colonnade behind the boxes, four rows deep.

The Yale team and a crowd of its supporters reaches here this afternoon and with their arrival interest in Saturday's game will reach a point that will only be excelled when the Eli eleven finally line up for the fray.

Bidding for Tickets.

A little scene at the Parker House early to-day was typical of the way in which quotations for the tickets are being manufactured. Two men, both bidding against each other for imaginary tickets, telling each other what they would pay if they could get the pasteboards until they reached a hundred and fifty dollars for the two.

By this time a small group had gathered around them and one young man began, producing the first two real tickets that had been found in search of Boston and offered to take away the money. Both men offered the proper expression and vanished. The young man went away with his tickets.

The invasion of Boston by graduates, pretty girls and young men has begun. Practically every hotel in the city is full with no chance of any more substantial accommodations over Friday and Saturday night.

Bookings were made months ahead in many cases and to-day the hotel people are busy sending back applications for rooms.

Not more than two in the entire town district are willing to-day to accept any kind of an application for a room on Saturday night. Even the Touraine joins the proposition for Friday night.

The following are the prices been advanced lunch. At the Touraine, the Bellevue, the Westminster, the Parker House, Young's, the Adams House and others, with very few exceptions, the rates have been kept as during the normal period, duplication of reservations is the order of their arrival. The Brunswick yesterday put the rates under story raise day at $25 a day. They had no single rooms at any price, the same story has held everywhere.

The Brewster advanced its rates because it did not care to book in advance, hoping to keep a room or two for transients, but that was impossible, all the rooms being engaged, up in spite of the advance of $2 all around.

No Tables at the Touraine.

At the Thorndike it was still possible to engage a table for a meal, but there were three or four left in the English room, with about as many elsewhere. They are being grabbed up by telephone and even by telegraph from far distant points. At the Bellevue three and four tables left for Saturday night. These are probably gone by now.

At the Touraine all were gone. Neither the Parker House nor Young's reserves all their tables, some being left for the guests of the house and early men and a table there. The Nottingham also had a table or two. The Lenox house is full.

The Boston Tavern has a few tables left. The Brewster has some left and makes it a condition of reservation that at least two dollars and fifty cents be spent for every guest at a table. The Westminster is absolutely full in every way, tables and rooms.

The grand rush will come at those hotels that are keeping their seats open for first comers. At Clarke's, the Quincy House, United States, the Adams House and the hotels during room of the Quincy House tables are not reserved, except in special cases, and those who have been looking for table arrangements will make a late line for first comers. Guests of the houses mentioned, of course, will have first call on their seats.

Because it will be impossible for the hotels to care properly for the great crowd the hotel rooms are being left empty, supplies and putting on extra help over the holiday for it is a holiday in the truest sense of the word. They expect to reap a harvest from the forgetful ones, who will have to go to lunch rooms or starve.

To the hotel men this harvest of the crowd of thirty-five thousand is more welcome than a convention crowd of twice that number could ever be. It is a spending crowd and the best space of the season. The thirty thousand spenders of the hotel-seek ing variety never found in a convention headquarts. Wine cellars have been replenished at lavish rates.

CAMERON GETS 10-MILE RECORD

AMHERST, N. S., Nov. 18.—By defeating Bob Fowler, the Boston distance runner, here the other night in 54 minutes 46 seconds, Fred Cameron of the Rainbows now holds the Canadian record for ten miles, the former record being 54 minutes 54 seconds, held by Fred Simpson, in his race against Fowler. Cameron did the first five miles in 25 minutes 35 seconds, while he finished his first mile in 5 minutes 45 seconds, and made the last 100 yards of the race in slightly over 11 seconds.

UMPIRES GET MORE MONEY

The four umpires, Klem, Johnstone, O'Loughlin and Evans, who worked in the recent world's series, are glad they made a kick to the National Commission for more money. Until this year the men in charge of the big series have always received $100 and expenses for their services.

In previous years no rule ever worked more than three games, so the season-end stipend was regarded as fairly good pay. After the fifth game this year it was evident to the umpires that the series would surely go six, and possibly seven, games, and that the receipts would be far larger than for any other series. These facts served as a cue for them and a call was made on the commissions asking that the umpires get more money for their work. The matter was taken under advisement, and not until the commission sent out checks did the umpires know what their pay would be. The checks called for $500 and expenses. Then the gentle kick noticed each of the arbitrators $150 more than they ever received before.

It is possible that next year the umpires will get in on the players' pool. The commission is said to be considering a plan whereby one winner's and loser's end will be split four ways.

BASEBALL MAGAZINE FULL OF FEATURES

Football plays a prominent part in the Baseball Magazine for December and this clever monthly is giving much space to outdoor sports, still featuring base ball, however. The new number is called a Harvard-Yale number and is very attractive with the fine likenesses of Captains Coy and Fish on the front cover. Walter Camp, Arthur Cumnock and Frederick Colburn take the kicking game as their topic. Parenting the baseball patch side of things are found as Hugh Fullerton, Nick Flatley, J. C. Morse, Charles Everett Beane, William M. Rankin, while stories on Hooks Wagner, Ty Cobb and Jesse Burkett will be found extremely readable. Hugh Jennings tells about the American League race of 1907 and embraces the opportunity to say nice thing about the Boston Americans.

Don Brian, the boy of the "Merry Widow" has a story that will interest all, especially baseballers, for Brian was a good ball hooser in his day and focused to handle the sphere in South Boston where he finished his first nine innings. Other departments, Arthur Woods's athletic training of the New York police recruits, "A Scholar's Camp Thanksgiving" by Raymond Warner, and the story of the Vaudeville Cup motor race by H. D. Wiggin, Jr., are featured.

AMERICANS MEET DEC. 15.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—December 15 has been fixed on for the date of the American League's annual meeting, and it will be held in Chicago. The meeting will be held, concurrently with the National League meeting, business having announced to begin December 14.

MORAN OUT OF SIX-DAY RACE

Jimmy Moran, the Chelsea rider, who won the six-day bicycle race last year with Floyd McFarland, will not be among those present when the pistol is fired at midnight, December 5, at Madison Square Garden, New York.

Moran was ready to undertake the long grind another year, but he had such exalted ideas of getting that Promoter Pat Powers was not willing to accept. McFarland and Jackie Clarke have been reduced to make the loss of Moran. Eddie Root, who kicked himself out of the race by similar methods two years ago, is stated to make another entry with his partner, Joe Fogler, as a mate.

The odd part of the situation is that Moran became a promoter himself at the Vaudeville corner during the Summer. The change from rider to capitalist worked a remarkable metamorphosis. Jimmy was all easterly and sternness personified. Riders got short shrift from him on all questions in dispute.

EX-MAYOR TO START BASKETBALL GAME

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald will open the basketball season to-night for the Madison A. C. by throwing out the ball starting the game between the Madisons and the East Boston second team at Monument Hall. The Madison A. C. won twenty-eight out of thirty games played last year. Langlois, Steele and Cummings will be the forwards this season, while Campbell, Mooney and Meehans are stated to hold down the other positions.

The East Boston team is made up of the fastest players on the island and expect to give the Madisons a good run for the money.

As a second attraction the Madison A. C. team will clash with the Company B, 11th Regiment, team. Dancing will be held after the games and Conlin's orchestra will furnish music.

WILL CUT OUT FOOTBALL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The faculty of Georgetown University to-night decided to suspend all football games until the national football rules committee agrees on safeguards that the game has been shorn of its dangerous features. This is a result of the fatal injuries of Archer Carlston of the University of Virginia team in the game with the University of Georgetown.

MANTELL IS AFTER BOUTS

Frank Mantell, of Pawtucket is after the Eastern middleweights. Through his friend, Ed Moore, of Fallsville, he has deposited $100 with the sporting editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN as a challenge to any man to meet him at 135 pounds or under. He is willing to go as far as $500 for a side bet.

Mantell is in California at present. Next Friday night he is billed to meet Al Nell at Sacramento, and after this engagement he is coming East. The Pawtucket boy met Nell in the A. A. last Winter. Since then he has improved a good deal.

He has been fighting about three years and has lost but two battles in thirty-five. He is credited with the 20 rounds draw with Jack Twin as well as a draw with the same Sullivan.

BANQUET HEAD OF DARTMOUTH

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 18.—The members of the Manchester Dartmouth Alumni Association tendered a reception and banquet to President Nichols at the Derryfield Club, Wednesday night. President of the Manchester National Bank, Frank P. Carpenter, of the Class of 1879, was toastmaster. Speeches were made by Governor Quinby, Attorney General Bingham, Street, Professor John K. Lord of Dartmouth, Rev. Dr. Frederick Gunsaulus, Fred Cross and Dr. John C. O'Connor of this city. Mr. Nichols spoke of the ever-improving graduates of Dartmouth, being a graduate of the Class of 1883. Mr. Nichols was formerly coach of the football team.

BIG MARATHON RUN.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 18.—A big Marathon race is to be held in the Oriental building at the fair grounds here on November 21 under the management of Tim McGrath, who has conducted several races successfully at Seattle. The star starter will be Henri St. Yves, and Johnny Hayes is also expected to compete.

FIGHT OFFER MADE BY BAY STATE CITY

By TAD.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Here's a beat it.

Dear Tad—As bids for the big fight are in line I wish to state that I think the prominent men of Springfield will bolt in the bidding—for city being centrally located, we think that we can bid as much as any one in the world. This is a great sporting town and I as one of the sport ing men, wife to tell you.

I think we have an arena that will probably seat 20,000 people and in back of that 30,000 more can stand up. We are thinking of bidding $75,000 and will not if am pretty sure $20,000. They want it. This city is fighting mad and need for game sports.

Hoping that when the bidding starts ant we will be notified so as to be ready or competition I am,

Yours fraternally,
MICHAEL KNOWLAND.
Springfield, Mass., Nov. 11.

If some of the Prince bidders get that Jeffries-Johnson fight, you can bet your shoes that the other rival clubs will be there with strong fight cards for the nights preceding the big bout. Imagine the people who will be in town to see that affair. Imagine what the shows a night or two before will draw. Batting Nelson vs. Welch, for instance, Abe Attell or Owen Moran vs. Jem Driscoll as another card.

They did that when Jeffries and Fitzsimmons fought in Reno. When the big crowd from the country towns came to witness that, they saw a card calling Ferns and Turner to fight in Oakland the night before. The fans light drew an immense house.

And let a few bets that two or three championship fights will be pulled off during the week of the big fisting.

Jimmy Johnson says the person who wrote in yesterday regarding Harry Thomas is way bad on his dope.

"He is thinking of you could tell him when and where Thomas beat Stanley, eh?" piped Johnson. "Well, last December at the National Sporting Club on the night of Mr. Hutchinson's benefit Thomas and Digger Stanley met in a four-round go and Thomas stopped Stanley below in the second round and could have put him away any time he desired to. I never said that Thomas was a bantam champion. He is evidently a four champion, but since his advent into the professional chase he has done nothing that will class him as a English lishmen where has he been if he hadn't heard of the famous Thomas bout. His last some champ look looking for an ad. Let him show up and talk to me."

DICE ROLL BAD IN CRAP GAME FOR ARTHA

Jim Coffroth, besides being the world's best promoter, is also some bear with the bones. He will shoot craps for anything from a cigarette to a thousand. Just before the late Ketchel-Johnson fight Artha after Jim Coffroth's office, and with the golden smile working said:

"Morale, Jim. How's the house going to be?"

Coffroth replied: "Oh, it's going to be big. Is that all you came to know?"

Johnson waited a minute and then asked: "I want to know if you could afford to lose a little change to me," and with that pulled out two big red dice.

"Well, how much have you got?" asked Coffroth.

"Five bones, exactly $5," piped the smoked broiler, and started to jiggle the bones.

"Too little for me," retorted Coffroth, who, by the way, was only there with three bones himself.

Well, they started after a lot of ragchewing and rolled for a dollar a flop. Coffroth copped the five simoleons, and then they started for $50 and $100 a crack. They rolled there for three hours, first one winning and then the other until Coffroth had $4,000 on the slip against Johnson.

"Shoot the $4,000," chirped Johnson, and Coffroth not believe it?—Coffroth poured out a pile of sixes, deuces and aces and the roll. He started again, however, and before the ordered person passed out the door was up for $1,100 winners.

After the fight Johnson blew into the office for his end. He picked up a roll of bills and also a piece of paper. On the paper was written:

"J. Johnson, Dr., to J. Coffroth, $1,100 to date."

"Hi," said Johnson, "are you really going to take it out of the purse?"

"No," piped Coffroth. "No. I just took it."

TERRY MARTIN BOXES SAWYER TO-NIGHT

The Unity Cycle club of Lawrence offers a rich treat for its members tonight when it will present in the feature bout of a dozen rounds Terry Martin and Tom Sawyer, the Maine middleweight champion. Martin will take the place of Bill Hurley. Terry is fighting better than ever now in his career. He defeated in the last month has polished off Honey Melody and Bill Hurley, either of whom can lick Sawyer. Quite a few of Boston's sporting men are to take the trip to Lawrence with the popular decision prevailing the Unity Club will have an overflow attendance.

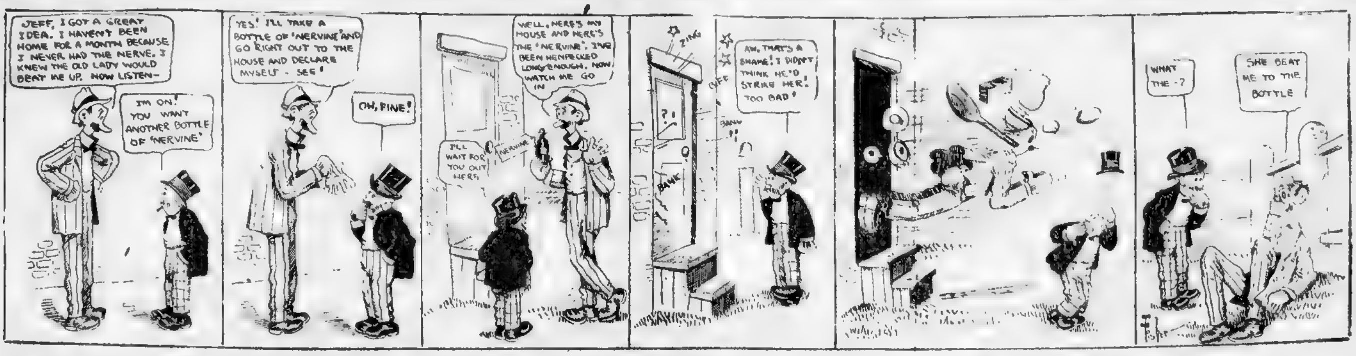
SPRINGFIELD IN FIELD MAKING FIGHT OFFERS

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

COLLEGE CROSS-COUNTRY RUN DRAWS BIG ENTRY

Mutt's Idea Is Good, but He's a Bad Ring General—By Bud Fisher.



LEWIS WOULD FIGHT PAPKE

Willie Lewis is very anxious to get a match on with Billy Papke. Lewis is now in Paris cleaning up all the boxers that they can stack up against him. His manager writes the following:

"Jeanette stopped Kubiak in the tenth round with a wallop that was the candy and the big fellow from Michigan was out for ten and then some.

"It was a hard fight with Joe having the lead all the way, and while there were no knockdowns it was a good punching match and Joe proved by the way he dropped Kubiak with a wallop on the solar plexus that he can hit some.

"I see that one of the experts is making a great roar about Papke offering to fight Lewis for $5,000 a side and give $500 of it to charity. The paper that printed that fell for the bunk of some writer that wanted to grab off a little space for he never made such a crack. However, Lewis will fight Papke and be glad of the chance. All that Papke has to do is agree to meet Lewis at 158 pounds ringside and Charlie Harvey, who represents the club, will lose no time in [illegible] up and what's more, he will be guaranteed more money than he got [illegible] and for many another fight that he has had.

"He can't lick Lewis at weight, and I guess he knows it. Let him come down to 158 pounds if he is as he claims, a middleweight, and he can get some money over here."

BIG TURK WRESTLER WINS HIS FIRST MATCH

Boston followers of the wrestling game were given an opportunity last night at the Columbia Theatre to size up two foreign aspirants to the championship, when Tunga, the Turk, and [illegible], a German, came together in a catch-as-catch-can match. It was interesting as an exposition of the methods employed in the different countries of Europe, and while their slow going bull strength tactics do not compare favorably with the faster and more aggressive style of wrestling, still the big men gave a good account of themselves. Tunga, though he appeared slow, was exceedingly powerful both on offence and defence and it was noticed that his wiser opponent never got the jump on him. The Turk won the first fall in twenty-three minutes and the second in five, with the burly German never having a look-in.

BOXING NOTES BRIEFLY TOLD

Frank Mulkern, manager of Billy Klabby, welterweight, who is after the world's welterweight championship, posted a forfeit of $1,000 and challenges the world in behalf of Clabby. The forfeit is to go for a side bet for twenty rounds or more with any legitimate welterweight who accepts the defi.

The boxing game is booming in Kansas City. Packy McFarland and Johnny Thompson, who boxed ten rounds there the other night, drew 5,000 persons at a dollar a head. If the Kansas City promoters can keep the sport free from fakes it is bound to [illegible]. But the Missouri fight fans will not stand for [illegible].

* * *

So many wild [illegible] are in circulation regarding the proposed Johnson-Jeffries battle that some of them are hard to digest. The sporting fraternity is now solemnly informed that leading colored citizens, at the instigation of one Barron Wilkins, are raising $10,000 by subscription to be wagered on Johnson's chances; also that a club in New Orleans has offered a purse of $110,000 for the mill. When a South African diamond mine has been hung up for the fighters it is thought that the limit of invention will be reached unless somebody [illegible] an offer to pull off the contest in Pekin, China.

* * *

The National Sporting Club of London has decided to make an offer for a twenty round bout between Freddie Welsh, England's lightweight champion, and Battling Nelson for the world's title. But as Nelson will not cross the Atlantic to meet Welsh this offer will amount to nothing. In fact it is a question whether Nelson will consent to a battle with Welsh on American soil as the Dane has seen fit to ignore the latest challenge from the clever British boxer. Several of the California promoters in town say a Welsh-Nelson fight of forty-five rounds would draw a $50,000 gate on the Coast.

* * *

Joe Woodman, manager of Sam Langford, says Johnson is a bluffer because he refuses to fight the Boston pugilist, while W. A. Brady calls Jeffries a similar name since the boilermaker has declined to try conclusions with [illegible]. "Would Jeffries agree to tackle Kaufman if he could have [illegible] per cent of the receipts from moving pictures of the bout?" asked a ring expert yesterday. "These pictures would net $250,000 easily and Jeff would be foolish to pass up such a good thing." Another query was "How much would Brady get?"

* * *

Johnson will be in Pittsburg the same week that Langford fights Schreck. Langford's manager hopes to nail the big colored man down to a fight with Langford at that time. More advertising.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOR SPORT FANS

THAT POPULAR MATINEE HERO James J. Jeffries, and his glittering aggregation of fellow-actors are billed to shoot across the local firmament with an all star vaudeville show on December 2, the day after the bids for the big fight are opened in New York. The show will be staged at the Armory A. A. and there will be vaudeville, boxing and near boxing. No announcement has yet been made that Jeff has secured the services of the Sullivan Twins in their great "Sawdust Brothers" act, but he's overlooking a bet if he doesn't sign them.

KICKING DOESN'T USUALLY GET you much, but it got Tobin, the big Dartmouth guard, a century note in the Harvard-Dartmouth game, according to a story which floats along in the aftermath of the contest. Tobin, according to the story had wagered that Dartmouth would score, and every football fan knows that it was his placement kick that did the business. I've kicked until I was black in the face for far less than a hundred and didn't get it either. How about you?

STILL THEY COME. MY OLD FRIEND Allan Lodey kicks in with an offer for the Jeff Johnson fight, to be pulled off at Fort Fairfield, and, believe me, there is as much sincerity in his offer as there is in a lot of them that are being sprung. Notice the liberality of his offer. But, say, isn't he holding out the big end of the game when he reserves the phonograph privileges? Read the offer from the great potato belt, and don't confuse Aroostook County with a mining community.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Through your column, I desire to bid for the Johnson-Jeff exhibition, to be held before the Fort Fairfield Athletic Association on July 4, 1910.
We agree to hang up a $250,000 purse. Also to give the whole of the picture privilege to the principals, providing the association may keep the [illegible].
Bob McKee to referee. Association to allow $20 to each [illegible] fighter for training expenses. [illegible] more than they will need for training [illegible].
Association to provide use of [illegible] opera house for rehearsals [illegible] fear of going back [illegible] stage act.
Jeff must [illegible] the exclusive copyright to his latest song, "I Want to Fight the Nigger But Papa Says I can't."
We will also hang up a larger purse for a fight between Battling Nelson and the winner of the above fight. The dope says Nelson has a perfect right, and the dope is all we can go by. As Nelson beat Gans, and Corbett beat McGovern, and McGovern beat [illegible] and [illegible] beat Lavigne, and Lavigne beat Walcott, and Walcott beat Choynski, and Choynski beat [illegible] and [illegible] beat Sharkey and Sharkey gave Jeff the hardest [illegible] to [illegible] Nelson have a chance with the winner of the Johnson Jeff fight. What?
But [illegible] get Jeff and John to sign [illegible] make Jeffries [illegible] Miller and the other Western fakers take to the tall and lofty.
Very truly,
ALLEN LODEY, matchmaker
F. F. A. A.
P. S. Fort Fairfield is NOT a mining town.

MIKE TWIN SULLIVAN SAYS HE would like to see Jim Jeffries accept "Kid" Brady's offer of a ten thousand dollar present if the Boilermaker will consent to meet Al Kaufman in a ten round bout before he tackles Jack Johnson. Mike thinks that it would be a sure test of whether Jeff is back in his old time form, as he considers Kaufman one of the toughest heavies that ever stepped into a ring. Although Johnson easily beat Kaufman in ten rounds he couldn't knock him out. If the ex-champ met the husky Friscoite and put him away in that distance—ten rounds—the public would have faith that he would dispose of the colored bearer when they clash in their big battle next Summer.

JIMMY SULLIVAN, A LOCAL BOY who has given a good account of himself at local clubs as well as in a number of bouts over in New York, is out with a challenge for Henry Miers or Al Limerick, and there is a likelihood of his being put on at the Armory in the near future. Jimmy boxed Miers a draw at Dover, N. H., last Spring and since then there has been considerable rivalry between the boys. The recent good showing made by Miers and Limerick would make the bout a drawing card.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Will you give me the address of Bob Armstrong, Jack Johnson's sparring partner, who is training in San Francisco. If you have his present address, give the one [illegible] the last two weeks. Yours, [illegible] N. Y. Z.

Write him in care of Baron Wilkins, 253 West Thirty-fifth street, New York city.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
A week ago I noticed a rather scornful reference in your column to bull fighting as a sport. Ever seen a bull fight? I hardly think you have. From your writings I size you up as being an admirer of gameness, nerve, and fair play. You get all of them in the triple essence form in a bull fight. The matador who faces a mad Spanish bull takes his life between his thumb and finger every time and if he wasn't absolutely fearless would last about three minutes. I read a lot of stuff about the bull not having a show. Why I've seen a good old bull clear the ring three times [illegible] and the crowd stood up on its hind legs and demanded that the game old chap be given life, liberty and the privilege of seeking happiness, which he was. Of course bull fighting is tough on the horses, but so is boxing tough on the spectator; almost always anyhow in the bull fight there [illegible]

[illegible] stalls and demands six months [illegible] going South for my kidneys next [illegible] shall advertise for the American [illegible] before going and shall continue [illegible] yarns with interest.
Yours for a fair deal on everything.
GUILARMO CASTRADOS,
13 Calle de San Rafael, No. 116 Tehuacan, Dist. de Tehuacan, Mex.

Every man to his likes, but I'll stake you to all my portion of the bull fight game. I've seen them and yelled for the brave old bull to clean up, but I never saw an instance where the bull's bravery got him anything in the end. Guess I missed that portion of it. I'm glad you spoke about the game being a tough one on the horses. It saved me calling your attention to it.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
In the football game between Everett and Medford High schools, Saturday, [illegible] Everett kicked off to Medford's right [illegible] who instead of rushing the ball, [illegible] punted back to midfield. As the [illegible] died just as the ball was downed [illegible] was stopped, some of the spectators [illegible] a quandary as to whether [illegible] halfback's kick is allowed under the [illegible]. Will you kindly inform us correctly through your column. Thanking you in advance, we remain truly yours,
ASA and JOHN H. PARKS.
Bradford street, Everett.

Yes. There is no rule of football that prohibits the return of any play by a punt when the ball was legally in play, and it was.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Having been a reader of your dope for the last two or three months, and finding it very interesting, I take the liberty of writing you and asking if you would answer a few questions for me. First, please tell me the longest fight on record for heavyweight championship in [illegible]. When, where, by whom and who won? Also who is champion [illegible] Marathon runner of the world. Thanking you in advance, I remain yours truly,
Salem, Mass. SAM JOHNSON.

Jem Smith and Jake Kilrain fought 106 rounds, London prize ring rules, in France, the fight lasting two hours, 30 minutes, and being declared a draw on account of darkness.

The bout was for the championship of England. I reckon you will have to hand it to Henri St. Ives as the Marathon champ.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—I have noticed answers to various questions in [illegible] what advantage Jeff has over Johnson in size. For instance, length of arms, chest expansion, etc. Yours truly, W. O.
Westerly, R. I.

Jeffries is 1¼ inches taller than Johnson and has the advantage over him in reach, chest expanded and normal, thigh, neck, waist and calf. Jeffries has a reach of 75⅝ inches; Johnson 72.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Reading in your dope column our dope on the pictures of the Jeffries and Johnson fight I agree with [illegible] that Jeff will find that he is [illegible] against [illegible] Johnson. I saw [illegible] Johnson wastes no punches, uses [illegible] enough footwork and is very quick with [illegible] I wish Jeff the best of luck but my coin goes on Johnson.

This Rudolph was some fine twirler in the Eastern League but he has been badly advised and thinks that he will have a cakewalk in the big league. Still [illegible] bush [illegible] Muggsy McGraw will probably make a man out of him and do away with any symptoms of swelled head.

At the home of the Bay State Automobile Association this evening, A. E. Morrison, for years prominently connected with the local trade, [illegible] will be tendered a complimentary [illegible] prior to his departure for the [illegible]. Contrary to the general opinion held as to the profit on automobiles it is a fact that the larger companies who have been [illegible] for [illegible] do not make a larger [illegible] any other standard line of [illegible].

[illegible] Briscoe [illegible]

[illegible] in the last [illegible] advancing in price. Crude rubber, for example, has advanced [illegible] the past few years and as a result tires cost from $30 [illegible] than they [illegible] formerly.

But tires are [illegible] material that has advanced. Steel, hair, leather have all gone up simply because the producers of [illegible] to [illegible]. The policy of the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Company has been to build automobiles in enormous quantities, and sell on a low margin of profit. Never has their percentage of profit amounted to more than 10 per cent. Consequently, when the cost of raw materials has advanced as it has, the prices on the cars must necessarily go up.

Tire equipment on the cars in the New York-Atlanta endurance run was divided among an even dozen manufacturers' products. The equipment of the largest number of cars is claimed by the Diamond Tire Company, whose total of twelve was practically 33 per cent of the whole. In both the recent pathfinding trips over the road between Atlanta and New York Diamond tires were used on the White steamer and Pope-Toledo cars and in one instance carried New York air in all four tires to Atlanta, and in the other instance brought Atlanta air in all four tires to New York.

The [illegible] in domestic virtue and even in natural affection seems to [illegible] such direct ratio to ones' income that [illegible] a man is faithful to his wife and [illegible] her husband or [illegible] fur[illegible] data on which to sett[illegible] in Bradstreets.

A [illegible] without a divorce is about as [illegible] without a string of pearls or [illegible]. It is a cold, dull day when [illegible] of the Four Hundred does [illegible] or her matrimonial partner [illegible] the domestic equ[illegible] of the Vanderbilts, and the Astors [illegible] and the Goulds, et [illegible] the gayety, if not the mora[illegible]

And the example is hotly followed by those who [illegible] their money instead of having inherited it. Of all of the Forty Young Captains of Industry, made suddenly and enormously rich by the Carnegie steel merger there is scarcely one, from Mr. Corey up and down, who has not [illegible] or some scandal in which women were concerned.

Some Microbe in Money

Nor is this all. The baneful influence of money on family life extends into every little town and hamlet, so that you find that the man who has made his thousands in Squeedunk is morally on the same plane with the multi-millionaire of Pittsburg or New York. It is behind the finest plate glass windows of the handsomest house in every community that there sit the heaviest hearted wives.

There seems to be some microbe in money that is inimicable to family life and that drives the average man that gets rich into what is euphoniously called "the double life."

Many reasons may be offered in explanation of this. The most obvious of course, is that the rich man has the means with which to gratify his desires, whereas the poor man is constrained by his very poverty to be good.

Also there must be taken into account the fact that the rich man is the prey of adventuresses. The man who is born ri[illegible] has to combat these from the cradle to the grave, and it is small wonder if, now and then, he f[illegible]

Safety in Poverty

Suddenly he meets up with some siren, young, beaut[illegible] with all the arts [illegible] ers him with [illegible] and it [illegible] gets home [illegible] think [illegible]

Almost [illegible] and the safety [illegible] poverty preserves him from temptation.

There are many other reasons why money seems to separate a man and his wife instead of drawing them together. For one thing [illegible] of interest on which the family is [illegible]. For another, it gives people leisure in which to brood over fancied defects in each other and to indulge in romances concerning others.

Above all, the possession of much money brings with it a [illegible] makes those who have it feel [illegible] have a right to do exactly as they please and have everything they want, and defy the laws of God as they do those of the country.

This is what brings about the strange condition of affairs in America where almost the first thing that a new rich man [illegible] a divorce.

Money will do much but it will not buy love and marital faithfulness and it is doubtful if many of the fortunes that so many wives help their husbands win ever brings them any happiness.

"I'll Put a Girdle Around the Earth"---By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1909, by [illegible] Examiner

Our own Puck sits at the top of the earth, watching with delight his belt of lovers circle the globe—the girdle he put around the earth

SHAKESPEARE, the Master of Fancy, had his little Puck sing this in the "Midsummer Night's Dream": "I'll put a girdle around the earth."

And our own particular little Puck that we all know and ardently pursue with invitations to come to "our tea party" sits in the moonshine of his eternal midsummer dream and sings this on his pipe to the yellow owl and the twos of lovers that are a-courting round about!

And 'tis no idle dreaming either—his boast. Long ago he did it.

Take a squint at the wheeling, whirling, spinning world out there in the white rags of mist and the thick, blue air, driving through the silver planets that spin, too, in the great void. And this you'll see: The great, green-brown ball swinging round and round on its poles, and, planted at its top with spread legs, screaming his laughter to the great winds, the feathers flying out of his wings, like the last man to stick on the roulette wheel at Steeplechase because he sat on the middle, clings the Puck that we know.

And around the world, girdling it like the milky ring that holds the ball of a planet, is a belt of lovers.

They dance with all their might and make love the while. They sing as they go, and they all pull one way, holding hands. They're playing "Atiskit—atiskit—a green and yellow basket. I wrote a letter to my love and on the way I lost it—lost it!"—with the gray old world, little sloe-eyed Japs, the Teddy-bear Esquimaux, the flaxen Northmen, the black Russians in hunter's green and fur, the little yellow Chinks, Ling and Wang; the Turkish in their yellow silk drawers, the ringed-eared and heavy-browed Spanish, the debonaire French, the two gay and gray-eyed U. S.'s, the Copper Indians, the Paradise-homed Hawaiians, and back to the little Japs.

"I will put a girdle around the earth." Puck quoth truly there. For he did. NELL BRINKLEY.

Is It Wounded Vanity or a Broken Heart

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A GIRL writes asking the difference between wounded vanity and a broken heart.

As much difference, my dear, as between black and white, day and night, joy and sorrow.

And yet, despite the great difference one is frequently mistaken for the other. The woman whose vanity is wounded may think her heart is broken, but the woman with a broken heart never ascribes it to wounded vanity.

Wounded vanity knows anger, a broken heart knows sorrow.

A broken heart has love as its basis; but wounded vanity has nought to do with love.

Half a dozen men may wound your vanity; only one man can break your heart.

The hurt from wounded vanity is an irritating, smarting surface wound; but the hurt from a broken heart lies deep and vital.

Many girls write me that their hearts are broken, but I know that in most cases it is merely their vanity which has been hurt, and that, even as they write, time has begun its healing.

Wounded Vanity Cures Itself

Wounded vanity is cured by its own touch: in other words, vanity cures vanity.

But now and then there comes a cry that I know comes straight from the depths of some woman's soul. And there is no mistaking that for wounded vanity.

If I could only stretch out my arms to that unknown, hungry heart and comfort her—but I know there is no salvation for her but time.

"Time, time,' wailed one woman to me, "I don't want time to cure me. I want to keep my love right here in my heart. I want to suffer, lest I should forget one touch of his hand, one tone of his voice. I would rather this pain killed me than that I should ever grow used to doing without him."

And yet, she will grow used to it, and time will help her, no matter how fiercely she hugs her sorrow.

Sometimes I think the saddest fate that falls to any human being is to be born a woman.

A man loves joyously, with no forebodings. From the moment a woman knows love she knows fear. She idealizes love to such an extent that it never quite reaches her expectations.

There is no line more true than "Man's love is of itself, a thing apart; 'tis woman's whole existence."

The man she loves fills a woman's entire horizon, but who ever heard of his love for a woman filling a man's entire life?

A man has a dozen interests that are just as dear and as absorbing as his love.

Other's Charms

When a woman loves a man, all other men to her are sexless.

I doubt if there ever lived the man so blinded by his love for one woman that his eyes could not see the charms of other women.

Since love is the strongest, deepest emotion known to human nature, it is a pity that it cannot be a peaceful, restful quality rather than the turbulently one that it is.

Love cannot be concealed. You may think that you hide your love, that nobody knows of it, but you are mistaken. It is impossible to be interested in a person [illegible] show it.

Every tone in your voice betrays it; every glance of your eyes confesses it.

Man has no need to hide his love. Custom has granted him the privilege of shouting it from the housetops if he so wishes.

But a woman must hide her love until asked for it; she has been taught to be ashamed of the most beautiful, glorified emotion she shall ever know.

If the world were born anew, I think man and woman would stand upon an equality where love is concerned. They would share privilege, heart-ache, heart-break and consequences alike.

Who knows but perhaps they do now in Mars or some other happy Utopia?

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BETTER SHUN HIM.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX,

I am a young lady twenty-six. I have been keeping company with a gentleman five years my senior. I loved this gentleman dearly, and I thought he loved me. As he lived some distance from me we corresponded, and I met him occasionally. But he has not written to me of late, or else some [illegible] intercepted our letters. I do [illegible] why he does not write as we have always been the best of friends and have had no trouble. Would you advise me to write again. I do not want to force my friendship on him. I was told by friends to shun him because he was married. Do you think any one would form such an untruth if there was no foundation? H. H. D.

I THINK you had better let him go. If he cared for you he would answer your [illegible] question of his [illegible] to have nothing to do with him. If he writes again you might answer his letter, telling him what you heard. That will give him a chance to deny the story if it is untrue.

DON'T MARRY EITHER.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I love a young man whom I feel sure returns my love, but this man has no [illegible]. Another man, who is quite [illegible], has asked me to marry him, but I do not love him and feel sure I would never be happy with him. If I marry the first one I shall always be in poverty. What shall I do? K. D.

I DO not think you should marry either of them. It would be foolish to marry a man who could not support you, and [illegible] one whom you did not love. You had better wait awhile and perhaps the young [illegible] prove or you may learn to love some one else.

It is generally conceded that the Boston American has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York city, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago.—Advertisers' Magazine.

Through the Wall

CHAPTER XVII.

"From Higher Up"

A GREAT detective must have infinite patience. This is the quality next to imagination, that will serve him best. Indeed, without patience, his imagination will serve him but indifferently.

Take, for instance, so small a thing as the auger used at the Ansonia. Coquenil felt sure it had been bought for the occasion. Billiard players do not have augers conveniently at hand. It was probably a new one, and, somewhere in Paris, there was a clerk who might remember selling it and might be able to say whether the purchaser was Martinez or some other man.

M. Paul believed it was another man, his imagination told him that the person who committed this crime had suggested the manner of it and overseen the details of it down to even the precise placing of the eyeholes. It must be so or the plan would not have succeeded.

The assassin, then, was a friend of Martinez; that is, the Spaniard had considered him a friend, and, as it was of the last importance that these holes through the wall be large enough and not too large, this friend might well have seen personally to the purchase of the auger not leaving it to a rattle-brained billiard player, who, doubtless, regarded the whole affair as a joke. It was not a joke.

So, as part of his day's work, M. Paul had taken steps for the finding of this smallish object dropped into the Seine by Pussy Wilmott; and, betime on the morning after that lady's examination, a diver began work along the Concorde Bridge under the guidance of a young detective named Bobet, selected for the [illegible] M. Paul himself.

That was one thread to be followed, a thread that might lead poor Robert through weary days and nights until, among all the hardware shops in Paris, he had found the particular one where that particular auger had been sold!

Another thread, meanwhile, was leading another trustworthy man in and out among friends of Martinez, whom he must study one by one until the false friend had been discovered. And another thread was hurrying still another man along the trail of the fascinating Anita, for Coquenil wanted to find out why she had changed her mind that night and what she knew about the key to the alleyway door. Somebody gave the key to [illegible]

Besides all this, and more important, M. Paul had planned a [illegible] Papa Tignol when the old man reported for instructions this [illegible] ing, just as the detective was finishing his chocolate and toast under the trees in the garden.

"Ah, Tignol!" he exclaimed, with a buoyant smile. "It's a fine day, all the birds are singing, and—we're going to do great things." He rubbed his hands exultingly. "I want you to do a little job at the Hotel des Etrangers, where Kittredge lived. You are to take a room on the sixth floor, if possible, and spend your time playing the flute."

"Playing the flute?" gasped Tignol. "I don't know how to play the flute."

"All the better! Spend your time learning! There is no one who gets so quickly in touch with his neighbors as a man learning to play the flute."

"Ah!" grinned the other shrewdly. "You're after information from the sixth floor?"

M. Paul nodded and told his assistant exactly what he wanted.

"Eh, eh!" chuckled the old man. "A droll idea! I'll learn to play the flute!"

"Meet me at nine to-night at the Three Wise Men, and—good luck. I'm off to the Sante."

As he drove to the prison Coquenil thought with absorbed interest of the test he was planning to settle the question of the footprints. He was satisfied, from a study of the plaster casts, that the assassin had limped slightly on his left heel as he escaped through the alleyway; the impressions showed this, the left heel being heavily marked, while the ball of the left foot was much fainter, as if the left ankle movement had been hampered by rheumatism or gout.

It was for this reason Coquenil had been at such pains to learn whether Kittredge suffered from these maladies. It appeared that he did not. Indeed, M. Paul himself remembered the young man's quick, springy step when he left the cab that fatal night to enter Bonneton's house.

So now he proposed to make Lloyd walk back and forth several times in a pair of his own boots over soft earth in the prison yard, and then show that impressions of these new footprints were different in the pressure marks, and probably in the length of stride, from those left in the alleyway, which would be further indication, along with the differences already noted in the nails, that the alleyway footprints were not made by Kiterage.

Not made by Kittredge, reflected the detective, but by a man wearing Kittredge's boots—a man wearing the missing third pair, the stolen pair! Ah, there was a nut to crack! This man must have stolen the boots, as he had doubtless stolen the boots to Kittredge's room after the crime. Why not? It was essential to his purpose that they be found in Kitterage's room. He must have intended to return them. Something quite unforeseen must have prevented him from doing so. What had prevented the assassin from returning Kittredge's boots?

As soon as Coquenil reached the prison he was shown into the director's private room, and he noticed that M. Dedet received him with a strange mixture of surliness and suspicion.

"What's the trouble?" asked the detective.

"Everything!" snarled the other; then he burst out: "What did you mean by sending that girl to me?"

"What did I mean?" repeated Coquenil, puzzled by the jailer's hostility. "Didn't she tell you what she wanted?"

Dedet made no reply, but, unlocking a drawer, he searched among some envelopes, and producing a square of faded blotting paper he opened it before his visitor.

"There!" he said, and with a heavy finger pointed to a scrawl of words. "That's what she wrote, and you know damned well you put her up to it."

Coquenil studied the words with increasing perplexity. "I have no idea what this means," he declared.

"You lie!" retorted the jailer.

M. Paul sprang to his feet. "Take that back," he ordered, with a look of menace, and the rough man grumbled an apology. "Just the same," he muttered, "it's mighty queer how she knew it unless you told her."

"Knew what?"

The jailer eyed Coquenil searchingly. "Nom d'un chien, I guess you're straight after all, but—how did she come to write that?" He scratched his dull head in mystification.

"I have no idea."

"See here," went on Dedet almost appealingly, "do you believe a girl I never saw could know a thing about me, that nobody knows?"

"Strange!" mused the detective. "Is it an important thing?"

"Is it? If it hadn't been about the most important thing, do you think I'd have broken a prison rule and let her see that man? Well, I guess not. But I was up against it and—I took a chance."

Coquenil thought a moment. "I don't suppose you want to tell me what these words mean that she wrote?"

"No, I don't," said the jailer, dryly.

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

THE officers of a man-o'-war in Eastern waters were invited to dinner by a Chinese mandarin, and during the meal one of the officers wished a second helping of a certain savory dish which he supposed was duck. Not knowing a word of Chinese, he therefore extended his empty plate, remarking with smiling approval:

"Quack! quack! quack!"

But the officer's appetite failed him suddenly as his host, with a twinkle of slant celestial eyes, shook his head with the simple but horrifying response:

"No quack! quack!—bow! wow! wow!"

MAKING FOR ECONOMY.

"What extravagance to buy your wife such an expensive ring!"

"On the contrary: since she got it she has bought only half as many pairs of gloves."

Fat Folks Fancy This Weather Helps Them

Fat folks like the cold weather. From now until next Summer most fat people will move [illegible]. They drink and eat more in the Winter than they do in the Summer. They wear heavier clothes and thereby get even less oxygen into the system than they did a few months ago. Oxygen is life. It makes the blood and nerves strong. It [illegible] purify the system and we take in ¼ as much oxygen through the pores as we do through the lungs. Suppose these pores are underlaid with fat, how can one expect these pores to do their work of taking in life or throwing off the waste matter? The best way to reduce fat is to take a Marmola Tablet after each meal. Eat what you will, or do what you like, the fat will no longer be made when these tablets go into the system. They are eaten just like food. They remove fat at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day, and after the fat is gone they leave no flabby skin and ugly wrinkles. Thousands of our best known fat men and women have been restored to normal health and weight by just a few of these tablets. They are sold wherever drugs are sold, or if you prefer send 75 cts., the price of a case, to The Marmola Company, Dept. 180, Detroit, Mich., and they will send same to you by return mail in a plain package.

Save this Recipe for Cough Syrup. It's Splendid.

You can make this unequalled cough syrup at home in five minutes, and you will find it a very handy household remedy. A few doses usually conquer a deep-seated cough. This recipe makes a full pint for only 54 cents, and lasts a whole family a long time. Tastes good, too. There is nothing better at any price.

Take a pint of granulated sugar, add half a pint of warm water and stir for about two minutes. Put 2¼ oz. Pinex in a pint bottle and fill up with the sugar syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You will also find this simple remedy excellent for whooping cough, bronchitis, hoarseness, chest pains, etc.

This recipe will not work with any of the weaker pine preparations. Use the real Pinex itself, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway White Pine Extract. Your druggist has it, or can easily get it for you.

Strained honey can be used instead of the syrup, and makes a very fine honey and pine tar cough syrup.

Society Leaders Take Turn as Salesladies For Sake of Charity

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Debutante affairs and charitable functions are first in the interest of society to-day.

Charity is the dominant note in the social symphony just now and will continue so up to the holidays.

One of the most important of the many charity sales of the season is the one to-day at the Brunswick in aid of the Talitha Cumi Home. It opened at 10 o'clock this morning and continues until 6 o'clock this evening.

Mrs. S. Parker Bremer (Mary Bigelow) has charge of the luncheon which is served from 11:30 until 2:30.

Other society women actively interested are Mrs. William Lindsay, who has charge of the art table on which several of the beautiful articles which she has brought over with her this Fall from Europe, where she spent the Summer; Mrs. Arthur Perry, who has the fancy table in charge; Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, who has the cake and candy table; Mrs. Costello Converse, in charge of the apronstall and Mrs. Malcolm Storer, the household.

This is also the day of the reception which Mrs. George E. Carter is giving at her home in Brookline to introduce her daughter, Miss Bradley. Among the debutantes who assist are the Misses Emma Carr, Katharyn Hoyt, Katherine Stone and Francis Habirshaw of Brookline, Leslie Bullivant, Isabelle Coolidge and Margaret Carlton of Newton, Annie and Mabel Vose and Marguerite Moore of Boston, Mrs. Russell Fenn of Brookline and Miss Nancy Peterson of Wheeling, W. Va., will also receive with the hostess and her daughter.

Another interesting bud event is the reception Mrs. Burgess is giving at the Tulleries this afternoon for her debutante daughter.

Both to-day and to-morrow are important days for Miss Madeleine Appleton and her cup is surely running over for her relatives and friends are doing their utmost to make her a happy debutante. Her aunt Mrs. Madeleine Mixter of No. 241 Marlboro street is giving a reception and tea at her home this afternoon and receives with her from 4 in the afternoon until 7 o'clock.

Most of the other charming buds of the season are present and no less than twelve of them help pour. Miss Appleton is the daughter of Mrs. Randolph Morgan Appleton (Helen Mixer).

Not many of the girls who are being presented this season have had luncheons in their honor and if all affairs have been reported, Miss Appleton is the first to have a luncheon complimentary to her.

Mrs. Edmund M. Wheelwright of Beacon street has, however, arranged a luncheon party for her and has invited quite a large party of young people to attend to-morrow. Others affairs are being planned for the young debutante and her first season promises to be a very successful and happy one.

Miss Appleton is the eldest daughter of the house and her two sisters are the Misses Julia and Sibyl Appleton, who with Miss Madeleine have been much abroad with their mother. Miss Madeleine is an accomplished and attractive girl and has a large circle of friends in the younger set.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Thayer are expected to come up from Lancaster to-day to take possession of the house belonging to Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, which is on Arlington street. Mrs. Sears and her daughter, Miss Helen Sears have decided to spend the Winter abroad and have been occupying the house for a short time since their return from their country home. The Thayers will occupy Mrs. Sears' house during the remainder of the season.

Mrs. Henry Parkman is to give a tea and reception for her daughter, Miss Mary Parkman, to-morrow afternoon at her Winter residence on Commonwealth avenue. On Friday evening December 10, Mrs. Parkman will give a dance for her daughter at which all the young people of Miss Parkman's set will be present.

This is the wedding day in New York of Miss Bebe Irene McIntosh, daughter of Mrs. Allan McIntosh of Newton Centre, and George Conover Osborne of New York. The ceremony is a quiet family affair and is followed by a reception at the Majestic Hotel.

Miss McIntosh has long been a member of the Junior Charity Club of Boston. On their return from the honeymoon trip the young couple will reside in Montclair, N. J.

Miss Priscilla Harding, daughter of Mrs. Edgar Harding of Beacon street, has taken a house in the hunting country of Bedfordshire, England, and will make her home there this Winter. She is being chaperoned by an English lady, a friend of her mother's.

Miss Harding will do much entertaining. She is especially devoted to hunting. Her mother and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles L. Harding of Westwood, who were in England all Summer, have returned to Boston for the Winter.

Dr. and Mrs. Lowell F. Wentworth of Melrose have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Draper Wentworth, to H. Clinton Gile of Brockton.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dillon of this city announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Dillon, to Alvan Bourne Hathaway also of Boston. Mr. Hathaway is a Harvard University man of the class of 1902.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Shuman of Beacon street are visiting in New York for a short time and are expected to return to their town house by the end of the week.

One of the most interesting events of the future is the dinner and dance which Mrs. Augustus P. Loring of Boston and Pride's Crossing has planned for her daughter, Miss May Loring. The affair will be given on Friday, January 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Greenough, who were married Tuesday in New York, have decided to make their home in New York instead of Boston, which is the home of the bridegroom. They will be at home after their wedding trip at No. 24 East Eleventh street in New York, the residence being a wedding gift to the bride. Mrs. Greenough, who was Miss Eleanor Whitridge, is a granddaughter of Matthew Arnold and a relative of Miss Ethel Arnold of England, who has been in Boston during the past year and will soon be entertained by friends here again. Mrs. Greenough is also a relative of Mrs. Humphrey Ward.

Friends here have received announcement of the marriage of Miss Phyllis Abbott of New York and John Torrey Burnett of Southboro, who is a Harvard University man and well known here. Miss Abbott is the daughter of Professor Nathan Abbott of Columbia University. The wedding took place in Florence, Italy, a few days ago. Mr. Burnett is a member of the Somerset Club and a number of other Boston clubs, and he is a member of the Harvard Club of New York.

Mrs. Alice T. Wells of this city announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marion Davis Wells, to E. Raymond Kearney of Hyde Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lothrop Ames (Edith C. Cryder) of Commonwealth avenue have decided to spend the Winter in the South and will be greatly missed from our social circles this season.

ORDINARY CARE LESSENS DANGER

Authorities are pretty well united in the opinion that ordinary care on the part of the individual greatly lessens the danger of contracting consumption. So many cases of this dread disease have their origin in neglect of an ordinary cough or cold, that it is appalling to note the indifference with which so many people regard this common complaint.

At the first indication of a cold steps should be taken to check it at once. For this purpose the following simple formula is highly recommended as being most effective. Mix together, in a large bottle, two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whiskey. Shake well and take a teaspoonful four times a day. It is claimed by the Leach Chemical Co. of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure, that this mixture will break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

YOUR THANKSGIVING DINNER

Well, here's what you all want to know. The Thanksgiving dinner contest closes Saturday night and the names of the winners will be published in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

What's the best dinner for six persons that can be furnished for $3.50? That's the proposition.

The AMERICAN offers $25 in prizes of $10, $5 and $1 for the best New England Thanksgiving dinner bills of fare.

There are few rules to the contest:

The bills of fare must be arranged on a scale for a family of six, and must not exceed $3.50 as a total cost.

Turkey must, of course, be included.

Send your letters giving the best bills of fare you can prepare for the price. Write only on one side of the paper and as clearly as posible. Also, don't put pins in your letters.

Send your letters to the Thanksgiving Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, Boston.

Here are some of the latest replies:

Dramatic Offerings in Boston This Week a Fine Line of Shows

Viola Allen and a star cast at the Majestic are giving a powerful presentation of "The White Sister," a conflict of love and religion.

Lillian Russell, her gay comedy acting, her new hats and gowns and her handling of many marriage proposals are features of "The Widow's-Might" at the Hollis.

Football a la George Ade is being exemplified in the revival of "The College Widow" at the Castle Square Theatre this week.

The Ketchel-Johnson fight pictures, Rinaldo the violinist, the Marco Twins and George Fuller Golden are leaders on the American Music Hall's bill.

The actual horse race in "The Sporting Deacon" at the Grand Opera House is thrilling. Next week, "The Creole Slave's Revenge."

Billy Van, at Keith's this week, said to one of the Beaumont Sisters: "To the tank with Mahoney for yours." The audience laughed at this hit on Sam Mahoney's arctic swimming stunt, which is another feature of the current bill.

Miss Florence Reid, formerly of "The Gay Hussars," is rehearsing at the Tremont Theatre for the role of Mildred Stillman in "The Love Cure," in which she is to appear Monday night.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi," beginning its third big month at the Park, is drawing consistent steady patronage.

The college student chorus in "The Fair Co-Ed" is a melodious feature of that college comedy in which Elsie Janis is starring at the Colonial.

"Three Twins" is on its final fortnight at the Boston Theatre. Clifton Crawford, Bessie McCoy and others contribute to the fun of this musical comedy hit.

"The Blue Mouse" leaves the Globe Theatre Saturday night. It will be followed Monday by "The City," the late Clyde Fitch's last complete play.

"Drink," the notable melodrama, is being revived at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week. Next Monday brings "Kit, the Arkansas Traveller."

Following the burlesque bill of the Frolicsome Lambs at the Columbia Theatre to-morrow night the amateurs will take a chance.

Fred Irwin's big show is giving a breezy musical comedy at the Gaiety Theatre, entitled "What Happens After Twelve."

The musical farce, "Divorceland," is being given at the Howard Athenaeum this week by the Dreamland Burlesquers, with Dave Marion leading.

Gertrude Mann's singing, with violin accompaniment by Miss Phillips, is a feature of the current bill at the Theatre Comique.

The Madison Square Comedy Four are features at the Hub. New moving pictures and new songs go on the bill to-day.

John Rucker, the Alabama Blossom; May McDonald, Tyrolean warbler; Ira Kessner, and other artists, with moving pictures, are at the Scenic Temple.

"Benedict Arnold," "A Convict's Heroism," "Mansion or Workhouse," "Fighting Suffragettes" and "The Personal Conduct of Henry" are new picture films at the Premier.

"The Fisherman's Bride" is the dramatic feature film at the Pastime Theatre this week. Other pictures and vaudeville round out the bill.

Moving pictures of the Pittsburg-Detroit baseball series are being shown at the Empire Theatre this week.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

THE PRICE

WITH yellow leaves strewn o'er the lawn
And mad winds beating at the door,
I mourn the fact that Summer's gone,
That flannels must be donned once more,
But, worst of all, I must, somehow,
Secure two plunks to purchase now
What could be bought with one before.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Hostess (to visitor)—Do try this chair. It's really quite comfortable for—er—an antique.

HER FIRST THOUGHT

"Darling," he said, "I have just been informed that my salary is to be increased 10 per cent. at the beginning of the new year."

"Oh, lovely," she cried. "Let's hurry and decide which will be the best way to spend the extra money we shall have."

THE SECRET OUT.

"What," asked the dreamer, "is the easiest way to get money?"

"Inherit it," replied the matter-of-fact person.—Chicago News.

NUISANCE OF THE ROAD

"What's a pedestrian, papa?" asked little Willie, whose parent had just begun to run his own motor.

"A pedestrian, my son," said the irritable father, "is a person who gets in the way of motor cars to annoy the poor chauffeurs."—Harper's Magazine.

NO USE FOR ASPHALT

The militant suffragette glanced critically at the pavement as soon as she had arrived.

"I fear the materials for a typical campaign are lacking here," she said.

Asked to explain further, she added that she observed an embarrassing absence of loose bricks.—Philadelphia Ledger.

'L' MERGER FAVORED BY COMMITTEE

The Public Utilities Committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, after an investigation of the proposed consolidation of the West End Street Railway and the Boston Elevated, reports that it seems to be to the advantage of shareholders in the former corporation to accept the permanent preferred securities which are available to them under the act of 1908.

The lease of the West End to the Boston Elevated runs to 1922. Last year's terms by which the West End would receive annually 7 per cent on the average amount of $30,000,000 of the Boston Elevated stock, and for the first preferred Elevated stock, and for the $11,120,150 West End Common stock an equal amount out of a new preferred Elevated stock.

The committee suggests that if the dividends payable by the Boston Elevated upon West End stock are to be made permanent and preferred, the free assets, amounting to $1,317,000, which West End shareholders want distributed to them are not necessary to the operating of the road, should continue to be used by the Boston Elevated and devoted to improving transportation facilities.

The committee says it is of great importance that the companies be merged, but suggests the act be amended so as to increase effective union of interests to a majority vote of the outstanding stock of each company, instead of an affirmative vote of two-thirds. The report was accepted by the Chamber of Commerce directors.

Barter, secretary of the Boston Licensing Board and secretary of the Police Commissioner O'Meara, intends to hand in his resignation in a few days to take effect December 1 in order that he may go into the grocery business in Dorchester with Frank F. Tighe. Barter has been connected with police headquarters since 1895. He went in as messenger and has been promoted several times.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; COPPERS ARE STOCK LEADER

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Copper stocks led the market in Wall street to-day, with Amalgamated, Anaconda, Greene-Cananea, Nevada-Consolidated, Smelters and Yukon approaching their high records made on Monday. Specialties such as Hocking Coal & Iron and Ailis-Chalmers were strong and higher.

The railroad list was firm, with Missouri, Kansas & Texas a leader above fifty and with Union Pacific selling above 220. Reading sold above 165, making a new top for this movement.

This advance in the market was due to semi-official reports that plans for the copper merger and for holding companies for Union Pacific and the Hawley properties were being rapidly matured.

London was also higher. The comptroller of the currency has issued a call for the condition of national banks as of November 10.

A SUNDAY AMERICAN want advt. is often the road to fortune.

Money appears to be the chief deterrent to trading, but banking interests say there are signs of substantial improvement.

$ $ $

It is evident that those in control of the market are pursuing a waiting policy.

$ $ $

Plans are being formulated, calculated to relieve the speculative world situation with bullish enthusiasm within a few weeks. The fresh outbreak of the Sugar scandal and the renewed depression of the British House of Lords to vote itself into a deep hole have made the success of the campaign more certain, even though very little delay in the beginning is made. The telephone deal having been announced and the Hilton dollar-for-dollar plan adopted in this way, lawyers are now busy with the Union Pacific holding company bill. That holding company, both of which will be announced before many days.

$ $ $

The Sugar scandal is going to be turned into a bull argument by making it the means of attacking Theodore Roosevelt from public life—at least that is the State Street idea. Every one's week point in this line of argument seems to be that if State Street knows too much about the Sugar deal it may be difficult to eliminate the former President, even with Cannon's capable assistance.

$ $ $

The English lords are going to be turned into a bull argument by having them overwhelmingly defeated in the general election in January, thus forcing adoption of the budget with its tremendous taxes on large values, which will frighten capital out of the kingdom to be invested in America. Actual effect of the budget has been discounted in the stock market.

$ $ $

Copper metal has been marked up one-fourth of a cent a pound, and the independent companies that have refused to sell their properties are lying low, hoping the trust builders will not invite them into the big consolidation. The new trust may make these independents by dropping the price of the metal to a level that will not be amusing.

$ $ $

It was the Gould financing that stirred up interest afresh in the Union Pacific holding company. Interests identified with the Denver & Rio Grande insist that the Western Pacific has been completely financed and that the stock is selling at it does because James J. Hill is being permitted to buy a half interest. Interests not open hearted. Mr. Hill is crowding the Harriman interests more than he ever would have dared to crowd E. H. Harriman.

$ $ $

This purchase of the Denver & Rio Grande has proved too much for the men who are managing the Union Pacific and for the daring railroad king. They have no one to blame but themselves. Pacific and Judge Lovett tracks the Wall street training and the other luck the quick judgment that won Harriman's battles. Instead of figuring out the holding company, intending in that way to get the two stocks into speculative favorites. They are tired of the endless see-saw between 200 and 205.

$ $ $

The plan now under consideration is expected to produce a new stock worth 65 in the market, leaving Union Pacific as a railroad company selling about 185. The Union Pacific will confirm before long by so able them to get public judgment on the proposition in advance of official action.

$ $ $

In regard to the Hawley holding company, all that can be said is that the matter has progressed so far that a conference-ment must be expected in the near future. Nothing is being done at present because of the hesitating character of the market.

$ $ $

Railroad men acknowledged that property equipped and managed as Missouri Pacific could be made one of the most profitable of all properties in the country. Physically, the company has been woefully neglected. A couple of years ago the State authorities forbade the company from running more than nineteen miles an hour on a stretch of 200 miles because of bad roadbed, a stringent order which is now conditions elsewhere. Financially, the company has been more or less embroiled to further other Gould projects. It recently holds Wabash Railway bonds that could not be sold elsewhere. The Missouri Pacific has been relieved from time to time by Missouri Pacific money. All that the road needs is to be let alone—to be allowed to subsist on its own earning power.

$ $ $

Missouri Pacific troubles, therefore, seem to be over, now that a responsive factor in finance has agreed to provide it with necessary funds. The same may be said of the Erie. The latter adjustedly has been handicapped by an overgenerous capitalization. Last year it provided a surplus of $2,500,000, compared with a deficit of 2,000,000 in the previous fiscal period. Harriman is to be credited with the favorable change in the instituted rigid economies and, moreover, made beneficial contracts for the shipment of coal by stocking houses in Chicago. The accession of E. H. Gary to the board means more business.

STATE ST. NEWS CALUMET IS STRONG AGAIN

STATE STREET, Nov. 18.—A little less interest was manifested in the copper share list this forenoon, although there were one or two strong stocks, notably Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg.

The speculative fame has died out somewhat for the lack of material to feed upon, but this can be remedied.

Calumet & Arizona's strength of yesterday and to-day has to do with the merger, although rumors to-day told of an increase in the dividend rate next week. The price was juggled up and down at a good pace this forenoon. After advancing 1¼ points to 119½, it broke to 117½, with subsequent recovery to 119. The strength of Superior & Pittsburg was in sympathy with the former, as there is a bond of union between them. Superior stock rose 1¼ points to 19.

Copper Range took on strength and advanced to 62¾ on buying by Frisc. Analgamated was firm in tone, although the price variation was slight. It started from 93⅝, to 94⅜. North Butte held well at from 64¾ to 64⅞ on limited trading.

SALES TODAY IN REALTY

Some very good sales of realty were reported in the city and suburbs to-day.

In the back Bay the Joseph F. Wilson estate has sold to Blanche F. Gallagher the three-story swell-front brick house and 2,709 square feet of land at No. 746 Commonwealth avenue, near Lawton street. This estate is assessed on a total valuation of $9,500, of which $6,200 is on the land.

The same buyer has purchased from the same estate two other properties in the city. One of these is that at No. 21 Pine street, extending through to No. 20 Brooks way extension, near Harrison avenue. South End. It comprises a three and one-half story brick house and 825 square feet of land, all taxed for $6,500, of which $4,200 is on the land. The second estate is that at the corner of Hemenway and Bryant streets, Back Bay, consisting of four lots of land, with a total of 4,841 square feet and assessed for $8,800.

Of this latter estate Blanche F. Gallagher has sold to Augustus Holzman one lot, containing 916 square feet and fronting 22 feet on the corner of Hemenway and Bryant streets, Back Bay.

Another South End property sold is that at No. 20 Northampton street, near Tolman street, which comprises a three-story brick house and 1,000 square feet of land, which has been purchased by Allen Bros. from Benjamin B. Blackwell. Assessed to-day through Jonathan B. G. Hartlett. This estate is assessed on a total valuation of $5,000, of which $1,200 is on the land.

George H. Holden has sold to George R. Brock and Arthur Brock, both of Dedham, a parcel of land, all taxed for $2,000, at Nos. 64-66 Dillon street, Roxbury, near Magnolia street, Roxbury End. The land is assessed for $1,200.

Edward A. Hall has sold three buildings, including a stable and 8,311 square feet of land at Nos. 1-3 Hall street, Roxbury, corner of Hall court, to Thomas Gallagher. The property has been sold by Emma B. Frost et al., as trustees, to Terrence Hodgdon. It is assessed to-day on a total valuation of $7,000, of which $5,500 is on the land.

Benjamin Parwell et al., as trustees, have sold to Joseph Lamoureux six frame buildings and 4,000 square feet of land, assessed on a total valuation of $2,000, of which $1,600 is on the land.

Benjamin Parwell et al., as trustees, have sold to Joseph Lamoureux six frame buildings and 4,000 square feet of land, assessed on a total valuation of $2,000, of which $1,600 is on the land.

Daniel J. Hern has sold to Mary Sinnott a three-story, swell-front brick house and 1,010 square feet of land on Shawmut avenue, corner Dartmouth street and Shawmut avenue, Roxbury. This property is assessed for $4,400, of which $1,600 is on the land.

C. Chamberlin of the Tremont building reports the sale of the entire property numbered 52 Norfolk street, Dorchester, consisting of a three-story brick house and 5,000 square feet of land, having an assessment of $3,200, of which $700 is on the land. William H. Cundy conveys to Robert W. Stanley, who will make improvements and hold for investment.

Another Roxbury property sold is that at No. 18 Dacia street, near Quincy street, comprising a frame house, stable and 4,200 square feet of land, all taxed for $2,600, of which $1,000 is on the land. Mayland Smith has sold to Carmine Paladino. The consideration is $1,900.

Frank A. Gaskill has sold two houses and 2,000 square feet of land at Nos. 47 and 55 Aspinwall road, corner of Whitfield and Aspinwall roads, Brookline, assessed for $3,200, of which $700 is on the land. Thomas Gallagher has been sold by Florence A. Walters et al., to Charles H. Spring. The property is taxed on a total valuation of $20,800, of which $4,200 is on the land.

In the same suburb a new frame house and 4,126 square feet of land, all taxed for $7,000, on Browning avenue, near Herrick road, have been purchased by Lucy C. Hatton from Abraham Cohen. The transaction is reported.

Four minute Records for the Edison Phonograph

When Mr. Edison invented the Amberol Records he invented the longest Record ever made for a sound-reproducing machine. But the Amberol Record is not only longer; it is better. It is made from a new composition which makes a more perfect reproduction of music or the voice than any known method.

An Amberol Record in an Edison Phonograph is the most perfect reproduction of a song or a piece of instrumental music that you have ever heard.

But do not accept our statement. Go and hear it. There is a dealer near you. Hear the Edison Phonograph and compare it with other instruments before you decide. We will leave it to your judgment as to whether you can buy anything for the price that will give you so much real, genuine fun and pleasure as the Edison Phonograph.

Edison Phonographs - $12.50 to $125.00
Edison Standard Records - .35
Edison Amberol Records (twice as long) .50
Edison Grand Opera Records - .75

There are Edison dealers everywhere. Go to the nearest and hear the Edison Phonograph play both Edison Standard and Amberol Records. Get complete catalogs from your dealer or from us.

THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILWAY CO.

TREASURER'S OFFICE,
195 BROADWAY.

A. H. CALEF, Treasurer.

NEW YORK, N. Y., November 17, 1909.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY:

Pursuant to a resolution of the Board of Directors, adopted November 16, 1909, and subject to the approval of the Stockholders, for the purpose of securing which approval a special meeting has been called to convene on December 15, 1909, the undersigned will on behalf of the Company offer upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated, on or before January 21, 1910, for the purchase of Trust Certificates, First and Refunding Mortgage Fifty-Year Gold Bonds, equal in face amount to thirty-six per cent (36%) of the par value of the Preferred Stock of the Company registered on the books, at the close of business on December 15, 1909.

Warrants signed by the Treasurer or Assistant Treasurer will be issued to stockholders as soon as possible after the closing of the books on December 15, 1909, specifying the number of bonds for which each stockholder is entitled to subscribe. Such subscription warrants will be issued only in the amounts of $1,000 or multiples thereof. Any stockholder who shall not receive such a warrant to which he is entitled to subscribe, a fractional warrant will be issued, which, if presented on or before January 14, 1910, will be exchanged for fractional warrants of the denomination for a subscription warrant for a $500 bond; and if the surrendered fractional warrant lacks more than $500 of being sufficient for a subscription warrant for a $1,000 bond, the amount of the deficiency will be stated in the fractional warrant issued in exchange therefor, and it will be the duty of the stockholders or to their assigns, in case they desire to subscribe. The second form, which is to be completed to be filled out and signed by the stockholders or by their assigns in case they desire to dispose of their subscription privilege.

Stockholders who may wish to subscribe for a portion of the bonds covered by a warrant and dispose of the balance of the subscription privilege, or who may wish to dispose of a portion of the subscription privilege covered by the warrant and subscribe for the balance, may, by endorsement upon their warrants to this office on or before January 14, 1910, or to an up to date warrants for the number of warrants desired, and the number of bonds to be covered by each warrant, specifying the number of warrants desired and the number of bonds to be covered by each, the

The price of subscription payable in New York funds, is:

$1000 per $1,000 bond, with accrued interest adjusted.
$475 per $500 bond, with accrued interest adjusted.

Such price will be paid to the Central Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, in instalments as follows:

At the time of making subscription on or before January 21, 1910	Per $1,000 Bond.	Per $500 bond.
On or before March 15, 1910	$350	$175
On or before April 15, 1910	$300	$150
	$300	$150

Subscriptions may be paid in full at the time of making subscription on or before January 21, 1910, in which case a discount payable will be allowed at the rate of $472.22 per $1000 bonds, and $236 per $500 bonds. After the payment of the first instalment on or before January 21, 1910, and above mentioned, the payment of the second instalment on or before March 15, 1910, by paying $508.20 per $1,000 bond, or $250.10 per $500 bond.

Bonds will be issued with coupons maturing September 1, 1910, attached, and the purchasers hereunder are entitled to an adjustment of interest to March 1, 1910.

The warrants must be surrendered to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York by the stockholders or their assigns, with the proper receipt signed, on or before January 21, 1910, accompanied by the payment to said trust company, as aforesaid, of the first instalment, and all warrants not so surrendered with such payment on or before said date shall be void and of no value.

Failure to pay the second or third instalment when and as payable will operate as a forfeit on all rights in respect of the subscription and the instalments previously paid.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York will, as surrendered, deliver to the subscribers or to their assigns, in case they desire to dispose of their subscription privilege, receipts for the payments made, and upon the payment of the second and third instalments in order that such payment may be noted thereon.

Fractional coupon bonds, to complete full bonds, or fractions which stockholders desire to dispose of, must be bought or sold in the market, as the Company will not buy nor sell fractions.

Full-paid receipts for bonds will be exchangeable for the engraved bonds as soon as issued.

No subscription or assignment of this privilege will be recognized unless signed by the stockholder of the Company.

No stockholder of the Company shall be entitled to any of the above-mentioned bonds unless the terms of subscription herein specified are fully complied with.

The subscription and respective instalment payments must be made to the Guaranty Trust Company, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, at the dates and in accordance with the provisions stated above. Checks or drafts in payment of subscriptions and instalments must be drawn to the order of said company, otherwise they will not be received for funds, and for the exact amounts due.

By order of the Board,
A. H. CALEF, Treasurer.

P. Sent's statement giving details of the First and Refunding Mortgage Fifty-Year Gold Bonds and other security therefor will be furnished upon application at the office of the Railway Company.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 22

The changes at the Dudley Street Station, and the addition of the Egleston Square and Forest Hills Stations, together with the surface car changes, involved in the opening of this extension, may, at first, cause some confusion, although great pains have been taken to avoid such a condition. The extension and changes will, however, when completed, and thoroughly understood, much improve the existing conditions. We, therefore, bespeak the indulgence of our patrons in becoming familiar with the use of this new extension, which has been provided for their benefit at large cost.

MANY MARVELS OF ELECTRICITY

Mechanics Building has never held greater crowds than are attending the great Electrical Show now in its fourth day. It is seldom that such general praise is given an exposition as has this assembly of things electrical. Manager Campbell has produced one of the greatest spectacular exhibitions ever given in New England. Beginning with the opening Monday night, when the doors were closed at 9 o'clock, every afternoon and evening thousands have enjoyed the beauties of this wonderland.

As one enters the main hall, the vast building presents the view of a beautiful Italian garden. Much doubt has been expressed as to real cows being milked by electricity, but they are there, as well as the electrically hatched chickens and ducks, and all the other many wonderful things accomplished by electricity. The electric home is now complete and in it may be seen the many labor-saving and comfort-giving appliances that appeal so strongly to the housekeeper.

Saturday afternoon a reproduction of the Harvard-Yale foot ball game will be given by the aid of the famous Irwin score board, on which occasion only the seats in the balcony will be reserved. One may at the same time listen to all the popular Harvard and Yale tunes. Miss Rita Mario, the leader of the Empire Woman's Orchestra offering a special program. Seats are now on sale at the building, Wright & Ditson's and at Herrick's.

Mr. Rockefeller Laughs at the Trained Elephant

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Some newspapers reported recently that John D. Rockefeller went to a vaudeville show and was immensely pleased by the antics of a trick elephant, which was one of the features of the program.

The great beast, powerful enough to destroy his trainer and all the people on the stage, sank to his knees, bowed his ponderous head in humility, and did a number of other things which gave evidence of his complete subjection.

This, it was reported, amused Mr. Rockefeller. It may not have occurred to many of those in the audience that only because of his STUPIDITY could the elephant be made thus to dispense with his natural dignity and do tricks as difficult as they are foolish, for the amusement of the crowd and the profit of his owner.

But Mr. Rockefeller is at the head of the Standard Oil Company, which for many years has been making the public perform antics much more ridiculous than those executed by the elephant. Therefore, he laid back his head and laughed with great delight, so the story went.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Rockefeller did not go to the theatre, for at the time he was at his Cleveland home. We merely use the incident to illustrate a point.

Some of the Standard Oil training secrets are now in possession of the public.

The company has a splendidly equipped corps of trainers, most of whom spend their time instructing the Senators and Representatives who make the laws which the people must obey.

When it is desired that the big public elephant fetch and carry for the trust a little more diligently than in the past, the trust buys a new monopoly with its superabundance of money.

If the elephant objects to serving this new monopoly and shows signs of hanging back, the trainers in the main office apply the prod to a legislature, a friendly judge or the Congress, and the elephant grunts resignedly and goes to work again.

Now and then he gets tired and refuses to work any longer, but always he is again prodded into action, and the trainers and their employers, sitting back and doing no actual work, enjoy all the profits of his labor.

As in the training of animals, this system of education involves cruelty.

The elephant at the show or circus which you see doing so comically and obediently whatever he is asked has had to undergo a long course of punishment to make him see things as his master sees them.

Sometimes he is merely beaten or jabbed with sharp irons. Sometimes he is deprived of food—starved until he is weak and his spirit is broken.

Gradually he learns that compliance with the demands of his trainer is the only way in which he can secure a little comfort and hay enough to keep his stomach satisfied. Then he is ready to perform; his education is complete.

The training of the big public elephant by Mr. Rockefeller and other gentlemen engaged in the same kind of work is no less harsh and cruel than the education of animals for purposes of exhibition.

Recently, in Pittsburg, the Pressed Steel Car Company "educated" its working elephant to keep on working at the old wages.

To do this it was necessary to shut off wages, which supplied food, and to evict the workingmen from their houses, the only shelter they could find.

A few weeks of this "education" brought the wage elephant back to work, unwillingly, naturally, but nevertheless profitably for the Pressed Steel Car Company.

Sometimes, indeed, the public elephant protests effectually and manages for a time to secure a little ease and a partially fair division of the profits enjoyed by the trainers.

But by careful manipulation of law-makers and LAW INTERPRETERS he can generally be got back into the harness again and continue to toil for the benefit of the owners of the big show.

No doubt if Mr. Rockefeller had gone to the theatre, as reported, he would have laughed at the trick elephant.

Very Interesting Moving Pictures

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Only now and then does some unexpected disturbance enable us to see what is really going on in this country.

A few years ago there was a little exhibition of the manner in which the life insurance business was conducted by the three biggest companies engaged in it.

On the screen of PUBLICITY a series of pictures was thrown which properly shocked and horrified all beholders—until the light was turned out.

Then the pictures were forgotten in the interest drawn by the next series of events, and public indignation died with their memory.

It can never be said in America that the people are entirely in the dark. If they keep their eyes open they are sure to catch a few glimpses of the real state of affairs in what is called "big business" as well as in politics.

Every six months, or thereabouts, there is another exhibition—another opportunity to look at vivid and truthful moving pictures. But if the people are to learn anything from those pictures—if they are to be anything save a mere interesting exhibit, like the locomotive in the cinematograph show that turns somersaults—they must be studied while there is time, and studied hard.

Just now there is a big show going on.

We behold the Sugar Trust.

The confidential employes of the Sugar Trust, TOGETHER WITH THE CONFIDENTIAL EMPLOYES OF THE GOVERNMENT, are seen conspiring to rob the custom house of its receipts to the tune of millions of dollars.

Already protected and made fat by a friendly tariff, the Sugar Trust is not satisfied. It does not want to pay even the duties that are imposed upon it—duties arranged so as to choke out all outside competition and make it one of the greatest and most powerful of combinations.

So the men paid by the Sugar Trust alone, and the men paid by the people AND ALSO BY THE SUGAR TRUST, and the smug officials holding to their jobs by the favor of officials owned by the Sugar Trust, are seen working busily together. The scales are made to steal by ingenious wire hooks, bookkeeping is juggled, inspection rendered worthless.

Considering how vastly respected are some of the cutpurses engaged in this precious traffic, it is a very fascinating picture.

Look at it while you may. To-morrow, perhaps, some Hungarian nobleman will propose to the daughter of a billionaire and the Sugar Trust series will be whisked off the screen because of your loss of interest in it.

This newspaper will never allow you to forget the Trust moving pictures. In the future, as in the past, it will present them as often as possible. Every new scene will be given as it is developed. And we shall always try to print the labels in good plain type, so that there may be no mistaking them.

It is generally conceded that the Boston American has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York city, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago.—Advertisers' Magazine.

Mr. Hearst Thinks a Fight Against a Free Press Is a Fight Against the People

The following letter by William Randolph Hearst was printed in the New York American:

Mr. John Temple Graves, Editor New York American:

The sentence of imprisonment against Carlo de Fornaro for alleged libel upon a non-resident, and the unfinished suits of the government against Mr. Pulitzer, of the New York World, involve principles and issues that should be seriously understood.

Imprisonment for criminal libel is a relic of the dark ages, when governments and courts desired the ages to be dark, and sought to inflict imprisonment upon those who were endeavoring to make them light.

Furthermore, imprisonment for an actual offense, where the offense is not of a character which requires the offender to be incarcerated for the public safety, is a relic of the dark ages, and should be eliminated from modern penalties, as imprisonment for debt and LESE MAJESTE have been.

Along with imprisonment for libel—that is to say, for some mistake or misstatement of fact in what may be, on the whole, a commendable crusade—should go imprisonment for contempt of court.

Take such cases as the Gompers sentence!

How outrageous that this man should be sent to jail, deprived of his freedom and of the other rights the Constitution gives him, because he prints in his paper something that some judge does not think he ought to print!

Are the GOVERNMENT AND THE COURTS TO EDIT THE NEWSPAPERS OF THE COUNTRY AND DEPRIVE ALL REFRACTORY SUB-EDITORS OF THEIR LIBERTY?

What becomes of our free press under such conditions?

If a publication prints an article which misrepresents or damages any individual, justice would be subserved if the individual should receive from the newspaper money damages as proper compensation for the damage he has undergone.

When an editor or writer is jailed by the government and the courts, no individual receives proper compensatory damages for a possible injury, but an enormous and outrageous inquisitorial power is given to the courts and the government to persecute the press of the country and to repress such acts and such opinions as the government may consider objectionable.

Therefore the FIGHT AGAINST THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS IS NOT A FIGHT AGAINST THE NEWSPAPERS, BUT A FIGHT AGAINST THE PEOPLE.

There is no newspaper but could succeed better from a merely material standpoint if it did not make fights for progress and reform.

There is no newspaper that could not gain more in a sordid way by shutting its eyes to corruption or winking at corporate aggression.

There is no newspaper which could not enjoy an easier and more favored career if it would consent to tolerate the usurpations of government and to permit the rights of the people to be invaded.

Newspapers fight—they give blows and receive blows in the interest of the people, whom they serve.

It is to protect the rights and liberties of the people that newspapers attack privilege, expose corruption and assail misgovernment.

That the newspaper should be abused and assailed in return is to be expected. That it should be injured in its income and its progress by the wealthy and powerful influences that it opposes, is but reasonable and natural.

That the newspaper should be assessed in damages for the proper compensation of any individual that it may have injured in its crusade is only just.

But that NEWSPAPER MEN FIGHTING FOR THE PEOPLE SHOULD BE TRAITOROUSLY ATTACKED IN THE REAR AND SHOULD BE SUBJECT TO IMPRISONMENT BY THE COURTS AND THE GOVERNMENT SUPPOSED TO REPRESENT THE PEOPLE IS OUTRAGEOUS AND INTOLERABLE.

Furthermore, and finally, TO DEPRIVE ANY CITIZEN OF HIS LIBERTY, EXCEPT WHEN HIS LIBERTY IS A MENACE TO CITIZENSHIP, IS UNENLIGHTENED AND UN-AMERICAN AND UNWORTHY OF OUR MODERN ERA.

Such methods belong to the dark ages when privilege and violence ruled the world and manacled all independent thought, and entombed in dungeons all who attacked established wrongs.

The people have won, with great labor and suffering, the right to free speech and a free press. Let them be alert to maintain those rights, and let them count as public enemies all who would destroy those rights.

For these are the foundations upon which the whole temple of liberty rests.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

"You didn't know it? Why, man, we have one of the strongest football teams in the State."

Student's Ten Commandments

By JOHN M. THOMAS D. D.

President of Middlebury, Vt., College

Thou shalt set the service of God and man before thine heart as the end of all thy work.

Thou shalt inquire of each study what it has for thee as a worker for a better world, not relinquishing thy pursuit of it until thou hast gained its profit unto this end.

Thou shalt love the truth and only the truth, and welcome all truth gladly, whether it bring thee or the world joy or suffering, pleasure or hardship, ease or toil.

Thou shalt meet each task at the moment assigned for it with a willing heart.

Thou shalt work each day to the limit of thy strength, consistently with the yet harder work which shalt by thy duty on the morrow.

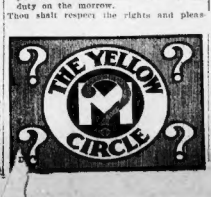
Thou shalt respect the rights and pleasures of others, claiming no privilege for thyself but the privilege of service, and allowing thyself no joy which does not increase the joy of they fellow men.

Thou shalt love thy friends more than thyself, thy college more than thy friends, thy country more than thy college, and God more than all else.

Thou shalt rejoice in the excellences of others, and despise all rewards saving the gratitude of thy fellows and the approval of God.

Thou shalt live by thy best, holding thyself relentlessly to those ideals thou dost most admire in other men.

Thou shalt make for thyself commandments harder than another can make for thee, and each new day commandments more rigorous than thine own laws of the day before.



Lives of great men all remind us
What a lot we owe our wives
Little women get behind us
And make something of our lives.

"I don't think my husband loves me as he used to."

"Why not?"

"He never thinks it a pleasure now to do my typewriting."
